WAR PERIL SEEN IN U.S. FINN LOAN

Finn Flight

As Congress sees a war threat for the United States in a loan to Finland, Russia continues to send waves of bombing planes over Finnish towns . . . with refugees fleeing in panic from place to place with their scant goods. These two pictures tell that story of mad flight . . . with no safety assured, with flight's end the possibility of a bursting bomb.

FINLAND LOAN 'DOUBTFUL'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Congressional leaders said today there was grave doubt that the legislators would vote further financial aid for besieged Finland.

They reported that a good many members feared additional assistance to the little Baltic republic might involve the United States ultimately in Europe's wars, despite President Roosevelt's contention that the extension of credit at this time would neither constitute nor threaten such involvements.

Mr. Roosevelt put the question up to Congress with the observation that the "most reasonable" approach seemed to be an increase in the Export-Import Bank's revolving credit fund to enable it to finance exports of American farm surpluses and manufactured products, not including implements of war.

No one, the President said, desired to create precedents which might lead to large credits to nations in Europe.

With the Senate in recess today until tomorrow, and the House considering a proposal to slash an appropriation for domestic purposes, the Senate banking committee called a closed meeting to discuss the Finnish loan question. Jesse N Jones, the federal loan administrator, was scheduled to be the first witness.

DIRECT LOAN "CUT"

Chairman Wagner (D.) of New York, of the banking committee expressed the opinion that there was no chance for passage of a direct loan, such as that proposed in the bill of Sen. Brown (D.) of Michigan to authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend Finland $60,000,000 for the purchase of anything, including arms, anywhere.

In addition to the Brown bill, the committee had before it one introduced by Sen. King (D.) of Utah, to authorize a $25,000,000 RFC loan for Finnish purchases of commodities "grown, produced, or manufactured" in the United States.

Wagner said the chances were not so good for this type of legislation either, although the com-

FINNS CUT OFF REDS' SUPPLIES

By PETER DE HEMMER GUDME

HELSINKI, Jan. 17 (INS)—While intense cold that plunged to more than 50 degrees below zero added to the suffering in bomb-wrecked Finnish towns, reports from the eastern battle zone indicated today that Finnish troops have cut the rear communications of two Red army divisions on the Salla front.

A statement in the official communique—"Near the eastern frontier at Salla our troops dispersed two enemy companies"—and late advices to the capital combined to show that the two Soviet divisions there finally have been cut off from their supply bases after days of guerilla warfare.

SAY REDS IN RETREAT

The Russian divisions, described as troops from the Ukraine and the best Soviet soldiers yet seen in Finland, have been moving from Salla in the direction of Kemijaervi.

Late advices indicated that the Russian divisions are retreating and making special attempts to prevent the Finns from capturing their artillery.

At the same time, the Russians were reported taking extreme measures to increase the efficiency of the Leningrad-Murmansk Railway, which has been cut frequently by Finnish raiders.

A number of Soviet functionaries were said to have been arrested on charges of sabotaging the line, which is a vital supply route for the Russian troops in the far north.

EXPECT BIG BATTLE

Military reports to Helsinki said that Finnish commanders expected important events shortly on the Salla front despite the intensely cold weather which has been hampering operations.

The defeat of the two Russian companies announced yesterday was believed to mark a preliminary stage of a renewed attempt to surround and annihilate the two Russian divisions which have been defending themselves vigorously against raids launched by Finnish ski fighters.

N. J. Blast Rocks 3-State Area

GIBBSTOWN, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP)—An explosion of 6000 pounds of nytroglycerine wrecked a unit at the Repauno plant of the duPont powder works here today, shaking buildings and shattering windows for 15 miles.

First reports said two men working in or near the small building that was wrecked were missing. The building was part of what employes term the "N. G. line"—a scattered row of buildings where nitroglycerine is used in making high explosives.

The shock was so severe it led to reports the tri-state area of New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware had been shaken by an earthquake. The plant is about 20 miles south-

3 HURT, 11 FLEE AS HOMES BURN

Three firemen were injured, 11 persons driven to the street, two children carried down ladders and heavy property damage caused today in a series of Greater Boston fires, fought under difficult circumstances because of the near-zero weather.

The firemen received their injuries as flames swept a furniture storehouse off Greenville st., Roxbury.

The fire roared through a quantity of second-hand chairs and bedding and then crept along heavy timbers under a new roof, giving firemen a two-hour battle.

Captain Francis B. Hanron of Engine 13 received fractures of both ankles when he slipped on the icy rung of a ladder and dropped 25 feet to the ground.

He was removed to City Hospital, as were Lieut. John McHugh of Engine 37 and Edward Hudson of Engine 12, both cut as a crew temporarily lost control of a hose line. McHugh and Hudson were struck by the thrashing nozzle.

In Newtonville, 11 persons in three families, including seven children, were driven by fire from their Washington st. dwelling house. Two of the children, sons of Mrs. Grace Bacon, were carried to safety down a ladder from the second floor.

The families of Stedman S. Langille and Florence M. Starkey, in addition to the Bacon family, were forced out. All were taken to Newton police headquarters and provided with sleeping quarters and food.

At Acton, 300 pounds of black powder in the mill of the American Cyanide and Chemical Corp. exploded and wrecked the plant, a one-story wooden building on the Concord-Maynard road. The resulting fire destroyed plant and machinery.

Six valuable polo ponies, owned by W. Cameron Forbes, former ambassador to Japan, were led to safety from flames which swept one end of the stables at the Forbes estate in Norwood.

BOMB CHINA FORTS

HONGKONG, Jan. 17 (AP)—Japanese warships off the coast of Chekiang province were reported today to have bombarded the Chenhai forts guarding the entrance to Ningpo, one of the principal treaty ports still in Chinese hands. Damage was said to be slight.

2-Alarm Blaze In Woonsocket

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Jan. 17 (AP)—This city's second general alarm fire in less than four days roared through the Globe building in the heart of the downtown business section early today, to bring all the city's fire apparatus and firemen to fight the blaze in near zero weather.

R. I. Home Burns After Couple Leave for Work

WARWICK, R. I., Jan. 17 (AP)—Half an hour after Mr. and Mrs. Jamee F. Cummings had left for work in Providence today, fire swept their eight-room frame home here, with a loss of $3000.

A dog and two puppies, fed by Mrs. Cummings before she left the house, were found suffocated in the ruins.

LOVE HAS FLOWN—Estranged for several months from Priscilla Lawson, his actress-wife, Alan Curtis, film actor, today revealed she was preparing to seek a divorce. Since the separation Curtis has been a frequent escort of Sonja Henie.

War Diary

137th Day

By the Associated Press

The weather today achieved what diplomacy has failed to produce—peace on European battlefields.

Though temporary, the lull in fighting extended throughout the snow-choked Finnish-Russian war zone and along the western front, where the coldest weather in 25 years paralyzed what little fighting there has been between Germany and the Allies.

Finnish forces held positions from five to ten miles inside the Russian frontier near Lieksa, on the east central front, where they have reported consistent progress for the past three weeks.

Congressional leaders in Washington express doubt whether financial aid would be voted to Finland since many members voiced fears that further aid might involve the United States ultimately in European quarrels.

British newspapers reported a German plot to disrupt Britain's railways had been uncovered and the 600,000 railway employes in the British Isles had been constituted a counter-espionage service to watch for sabotage.

As an aftermath of Parliament's discussion of the dismissal of Former War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, there was talk in Britain of a new cabinet post for him, possibly as head of a ministry to co-ordinate all British economic war efforts.

Dowd Ended Graft, Wife Says

Denies Laxity Existed While He Was Sheriff

By GEORGE HOLLAND

(Copyright, 1940, Boston Evening American)

"Mrs. Mary Dowd of Dorchester, please take the witness stand." Such an ominous confounding summons will never be issued officially. It is one of the blessings of the American jurisprudence—depending, of course, on one's point of view—that the wife of an accused man cannot be called to testify against him.

Informally, however, and with the consent of the lady herself, we are privileged today to call upon the wife of the fugitive former sheriff of Suffolk County to bear witness. We are asking her to answer a question that has baffled all comers.

It is a question that we did not list along with those earlier ones about mysterious "other women," gay roisterings in the sombre precincts of the sheriff's house, scrubwomen alleged to have paid for jobs, sheriff's pets among the inmates of the hoosegow ruled by Dowd, the mingling of male and female inmates, and—will John F. Dowd surrender to the relentless authorities of the very county in which—two short months ago—he still was Mr. Big?

"Q—Now, Mrs. Dowd, you knew your husband very well, did you not?

"A—Naturally, I did. The John F. Dowd I knew—why no one knew him better.

"Q—Mrs. Dowd, I shall couch this question informally — in what perhaps, we might call slang. I mean no disrespect thereby. But in the phrasing of this question, we will attempt to echo the majority of those who have propounded it. These questioners we picture now as a composite. Bunch them, Mrs. Dowd, and we get that absorbing creature so often referred to—especially when political campaigns are raging—as 'the man in the street.

"You have never seen this figurative entity—'man in the street'—but for our purposes we shall accept his existence.

"The 'man in the street,'" Mrs.

HOLD WIFE OF COP IN SHOOTING

In tears as she was taken into Newton district court today on a charge of shooting her husband, Mrs. Ethel Scott, 39, wife of a Newton patrolman, was released in $1000 after pleading not guilty.

Mrs. Scott, mother of three, had spent the night in a police station cell because she could not raise $2500 bail.

Today on plea of her counsel, Atty. William E. Ginsberg, Judge Donald E. Mayberry reduced bail to $1000 so that she might rejoin her children.

They were being cared for at the Scott home in Troy lane by Mrs. Scott's mother, Mrs. Walter Barnes, who had come here from New Bedford to aid her accused daughter.

Sitting in the courtroom with the defendant was her eldest daughter, Mrs. Ruth Sanger, 18, of Leominster.

CASE CONTINUED

The latter was dry-eyed as she heard Sergt. Patrick J. King ask Judge Mayberry for immediate hearing on the charge that her father had been shot by her mother.

Counsel for Mrs. Scott asked a continuance of 10 days. Judge Mayberry set hearing for Feb. 1.

"MISS NEW ENGLAND" FAINTS—Nettina Rich of Norton, famous as "Miss New England" at Atlantic City in 1933, suffered a fainting spell while visiting her ill sister at City Hospital. She was revived and taken home.

BEAUTY RECOVERS AFTER COLLAPSE

Overcome by emotion, dark-eyed Nettina Rich, 24, of Norton, Atlantic City's "Miss New England" of 1933 was resting comfortably at home today after fainting in City Hospital at the bedside of a sister.

Known to thousands at the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant of 1933 as the "New England girl with the satiny skin," Miss Rich, doctors said, arrived at the hospital to visit her sister. She collapsed but was quickly revived by nurses.

She caused a sensation in 1934 when she "disappeared."

Boston police had information that the statuesque beauty had been kidnaped, but she turned up unharmed, reporting she had merely slipped out of town to look for a job.

Girl Thief's Air Fling 'Glorious'

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Naomi Taylor's odyssey ended today in the Summerdale ave. police station.

She forged through a snowstorm before dawn to tell of her wanderings since Nov. 4, the day she disappeared while taking $447.62 to the bank for her employer.

Lieut. Michael Ahern said Miss Taylor, 28, told this story:

Notified by her employer that she would be laid off from her one-day-a-week job as cashier at a meat market she decided not to deposit the money but to have "one glorious fling and then come back and face the music."

First she flew to New York, where she saw six Broadway shows. Then she flew to Washington and saw the sights. Another plane took her to San Francisco, and still another to Los Angeles and Hollywood.

"I looked at the homes of many of the movie stars and tried to get a job, but I'm too fat. Men don't like fat women. That's one reason I want to go to jail—to reduce. I've tried dieting but I haven't got the will power."

Miss Taylor exhibited a card from a drug store scale. One side gave her weight—210. The other told her "fortune"—"Your pleasant manners will make you many friends."

"A lot of good that will do me,' she sighed.

David Lloyd George Has 77th Birthday

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—David Lloyd George, World War prime minister of Great Britain, celebrated his 77th birthday today with the comment that, like the French philosopher Renan, he "had enjoyed the walk through life," but added.

"If I were to say what I thought about the situation today in Europe, I should have to withdraw my first statement."

Twins, Backs Broken, Sue for $50,000

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 17 (AP)—They say their backs were broken in the same place at the same time in the same automobile accident.

So Louise Vento and Mrs. Josephine Bono, 18-year-old twin sisters, went to court with a $50,000 damage suit.

Short Circuit in Auto Horn Starts Blaze

DERRY, N. H., Jan. 17 (AP)—Fire caused by a short circuit in the wiring of an automobile horn destroyed a 12-stall community garage and six automobiles today. Firemen estimated the loss at between $4000 and $5000.

HURT—Because she got seasick on dry land, Kay Francis today wrenched a knee and strained an ankle. Working on a ship set, the actress suffered dizzy spell from rocking of the boat . . . rocked by off-stage workers. Stepping outside for fresh air, she slipped and fell.

PICKING BROWDER FRAUD TRIAL JURY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—Selection of a jury to try Earl Browder, secretary of the American Communist party, on charges of passport fraud began today in federal court with Judge Alfred C. Coxe presiding.

The courtroom was filled with spectators as soon as the doors were opened.

Browder's defense is in the hands of Atty. George Gordon Battle.

Although the Communist leader pleaded not guilty to the government's charge he admitted to the Dies committee he had traveled on passports issued under other names.

Before the jury was empaneled, Battle presented a motion asking that the court rule out "surplusages" in the indictment.

Battle claimed the government had only to prove that Browder gave false information on his last application for a passport to prove its case and therefore references in the indictment to previous passports constituted "surplusages."

The motion was denied and the first group of talesmen called.

RUN-OFF NOW FACES GOV. LONG

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 17 (INS)—Marking the most serious threat to the State administration since the ascension to power of the late Senator Huey P. Long, a second Democratic run-off State primary loomed as a strong possibility today.

Although most Louisiana was still counting ballots today, indications from incomplete and unofficial returns pointed to the running of a second primary election to nominate a Governor.

Governor Earl K. Long—on whom the mantle of responsibility fell during a period when the State was being rocked by revelations of graft and corruption—led four opposition candidates but his lead was not sufficient to bring nomination.

Under state Democratic laws the winning candidate must receive a plurality in excess of the combined vote of opposition candidates.

Riding high on a "reform" program to "clean up" Louisiana, Sam Jones, Lake Charles attorney and State Sen. James A. Noe piled up enough votes to stamp them as threats to the political dynasty that the "Kingfish" founded 12 years ago.

Joan's Ex-Mate Given 'Chance'

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17 (INS)—John Marion Fox, former husband of Joan Bennett, motion picture star, who "didn't like the idea of her marrying that other guy," was in a hospital today with a little better than an even chance to live.

The 38-year-old first husband of blonde-brunette Joan, now on her third honeymoon, this time with the noted producer, Walter Wagner, swallowed 100 sleeping tablets in a suicide attempt, according to police.

"I didn't like the idea of Joan married to that other guy, and I can't bear the thought of our daughter, Diana, being brought up by another man," Fox was reported to have said.

Friends of Fox were bewildered by his action. The pieces didn't fit together very well, they said. In the first place, Miss Bennett had been married to and divorced from Gene Markey, screen writer and producer, between the Fox and the Wagner marriages, and they had a daughter, Belinda, now six.

In the second place, as far as the friends knew, Fox had made no previous attempts at reconciliation. He had, in fact, devoted much time to court battles with his former wife.

College Head Guilty, Lauded

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 17 (AP)—Twice convicted of nonfeasance and misfeasance, Dr. Charles S. Miller, president of Slippery Rock State Teachers College, was sentenced to pay costs of the case by a judge who praised him for developing the college and turning out an undefeated football team.

Dr. Miller was refused an arrest of judgment in the case, which grew out of irregularities in management of school funds and properties.

He was convicted last October, but was granted a new trial. Two weeks ago he was again convicted.

Judge John H. Wilson, a trustee of the college, said evidence did not show the institution or state sustained any loss or that any one profited by the irregularities.

Carmody Tours Many U.S. Projects in N.E.

A whirlwind tour of WPA, PWA and federal housing projects to "see how things are going in New England" was started today by John M. Carmody, federal works administrator, who went to work at 7:45 a. m. sharp.

Arriving at Back Bay station from Washington, at dawn, he went to the Copley-Plaza, shaved, talked with reporters for 15 minutes and then announced:

"Next stop is the Huntington ave. subway. Then the library addition at Quincy and the Quincy-Weymouth bridge over Fore river. Then the new armory at Manchester, N. H., and later the new Marine Hospital in Boston."

SEES HULTMAN

He paused for breath and said:

"The sum of $1,427,000,000 was provided recently for needy persons on useful public projects. I'm specially interested in Boston's $2,200,000 Marine Hospital and the new Suffolk County courthouse."

QUIZZED ON THIRD TERM

Flipping pages of expenditures, Carmody said briskly:

"Projects estimated to cost $192,480,234 have been built or are under construction under the combined federal and non-federal PWA projects in Massachusetts. About $114,000,000 of this, including $106,000,000 in non-federal grants and direct federal allotments has been provided through PWA loan and grant allotments."

He told reporters that he understood the Huntington ave. subway project was "a great job" and that the Suffolk County courthouse was "a credit to New England."

Brought up sharply by a reporter's "Will Roosevelt run again?" Carmody snapped:

"I don't know. I don't think he even knows."

Plan Commons Quiz on Hitler 'Girl Friend'

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Members of Parliament disclosed today that Prime Minister Chamberlain's government would be questioned in the House of Commons next Tuesday about spectacular arrangements surrounding the arrival of Unity Freeman-Mitford from Germany, Jan. 3.

The blonde British girl, daughter of Lord Redesdale and a friend of Adolf Hitler, landed at Folkestone suffering from a mysterious ailment and was whisked away in an ambulance by her family.

Thomas Levy, Conservative, gave notice he would ask the government who ordered military precautions at Folkestone and how many troops were engaged.

Laborite John Parker prepared to ask the cost of welcoming Miss Freeman-Mitford. Other members intend to ask what steps were taken to facilitate her return from the Reich.

Judge Harry K. Stone granted her a divorce after her added testimony that her husband spent his money "on drink and another woman."

COLD SNAP GRIPS ALL N. E.

Arctic blasts whirled over most of New England today, pushing the temperature near the zero mark in Boston and below in most of the northern communities.

More than 200 miles east of Boston, the fishing trawler Lark, driven off Georges bank, hailed the coast guard cutter Cayuga. The trawler reported engine trouble.

Off Highland light, at the tip of Cape Cod, the trawler Crest called the patrol boat Argo to take off a member of the crew, reported in radio messages to have become mentally ill.

Meanwhile Coast Guard patrol boats were headed out to meet the Boston fishing trawler Plymouth, which reported by radio that there was a sick member of the crew aboard.

The coldest point, according to the U. S. Weather Bureau, was atop Mt. Washington, N. H., where the 30 below zero reading was the lowest of the season.

The maximum wind velocity on the summit was 140 miles an hour. Continued cold weather was forecast generally for today, with a slackening of wind.

Other low readings were at Greenville, Me., 17 below; Houlton, Me., 15 below; Newport, Vt., 12 below; Northfield, Vt., 10 below; Burlington, Vt., 8 below.

The minimum in Boston was 9 above, while in Portland, Me., the zero reading was the lowest for this date since 1911.

Urge Security Pay Boost for Jobless

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Social Security Board would like to see more pay go out for a longer period to men who lose their jobs.

This is another way of saying the board favors a change in the unemployment compensation laws along the lines of an amendment proposed by Rep. McCormack (D.) of Mass. and approved by the American Federaton of Labor.

That amendment of which more is likely to be heard before Congress goes home, would provide 20 weeks of benefits after a man loses his job. He would get from a minimum of $6 a week up to a maximum of $24 a week, according to how much he earned while working. He would wait only one week after losing his job before he started to draw benefits.

Under the present laws, he waits two weeks or longer before beginning to draw benefits—except in Texas, which has cut the period to one week. He draws these benefits an average of 10 weeks, or ranging from six or seven weeks up to a maximum of 15 weeks. He draws anywhere from $5 to a maximum of about $20.

STATE RESERVES GROW

The prompting for a campaign to liberalize the unemployment compensation laws comes from the fact that the states are developing a huge reserve fund. It stands now at a billion and a half dollars. In 1939, only one state—Idaho—paid out more in benefits than it collected in taxes.

Twenty-eight of the states put more than half of the amount they collected into their reserve fund. Save for Idaho, all of the other 20 states put from 20 to 40 per cent of their tax collections into the reserve fund.

Members of the social security board argued that the present payments are inadequate and that it would be better to push them up than it would be to trim down the tax payments in an effort to level off the inflow with the outpouring.

Congressional skeptics were cruel enough to remark that the Christian Front raids in New York, which yanked 18 alleged revolutionists into court, happened to coincide with the hearings the House appropriations committee was conducting on the bill to supply funds for the Justice Department. J. Edgar Hoover, the chief of FBI, has been a perennial applicant for more funds for his agency.

Score Governor For Icy Roads

Coincidental with departure of Gov. Saltonstall for Florida in an effort to recover from a serious cold, the Democratic state committee today charged that loss of life and injuries in automobile accidents during the past few weeks were a direct result of his "unjustifiable parsimony."

The committee alleges that despite icy driving conditions, the state department of public works has refused to sand the highways.

Committee Chairman William H. Burke also attacked the economy which forced scrubwomen to work nights in the public works building without heat.

The Governor will remain in Florida for at least a week.

Public Works Commissioner John W. Beal branded Burke's accusations as "contemptible lies," and added that the same engineer that had been in charge of sanding for several years still was directing the work.

Frozen Fugitive Gives Self Up

Suffering from frozen ears and a frost-bitten face, a shivering boy of 12 stumbled into the Medford police station today and surrendered as a fugitive from Lyman school.

The boy, Michael Coggins of Lowell, was rushed to Lawmence Memorial Hospital.

He told police he and another boy had escaped from the reformatory several days ago and that since then they had been sleeping wherever they could find shelter.

In near zero weather last night he had sought rest under the bleachers at Trum Field, near Magoun sq., Somerville.

Today he had suffered as much as he could stand and decided to give himself up. Lyman school authorities were notified.

VOLUNTEER GODFATHER SENDS $1000 TO ALABAMA QUADS

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 17 (AP)—Faith, Hope, Charity and their unnamed baby brother have a godfather.

M. C. McGehee, Jr., a bachelor, president of the Texas Gulf Producing Company, said he wired the Jasper, Ala., quadruplets $1000.

The quadruplets were born in a log cabin Sunday night to Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Short.

McGehee said he talked with Dr. H. J. Sankey on the phone and "told him to use the money anyway he thought best in providing for the babies' health."

JASPER, Ala., Jan. 17 (INS)—Faith, Hope and Charity were "doin' right fine" today and so was their baby brother, yet to be named.

Physicians, moreover, were optimistic over the quadruplets chances to survive.

Wonderland Park Now Faces Probe

Summonses were ordered served today on 30 stockholders, employes, politicians and others interested in Wonderland dog track in Revere—next to come under the scope of the Federal grand jury probe of dog racing in Massachusetts.

Announcement that the Revere dog track probe would begin immediately after the investigation of conditions at Dighton dog track ends, was made by U. S. Dist. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon.

Brandon said he had ordered his assistant, Henry M. Leen, to round up those to be questioned, and revealed that charges will be sought against at least five persons.

One of the number, investigators revealed, is a well known politician.

It was stated that the politician has paid his income tax since the matter was brought to his attention, but that Washington authorities ordered a probe of the entire situation at Revere.

According to reports brought to the attention of investigators, more than $250,000 was paid to stockholders in the Revere track without an income tax being said.

It was believed to have been concealed in the returns of women employes of the track—10 of whom have been summoned to testify before the grand jury.

LOSES SUIT—The fight she waged for nine years to nullify the will of Frederick G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, Philadelphia theater magnate whom she shot and killed, and was later acquitted, was lost today by Mrs. Charlotte Nixon in Philadelphia court. She sought outright title to one-third of his estate.

Rookie Cop Nabs 2 With Light Trick

It was all good clean fun stealing a taxicab, at the start, but in Brighton court today it turned out to be a bundle of blunders, with Frank Goodsoe, 49, of Commonwealth ave., Allston, having the worst headache.

This "saga of the cab" started in Framingham last night.

Francis P. Keefe, 23, of Parkman st., Brighton, and Charles McAlinden, 22, of the same address, were in Goodsoe's taxicab, reported stolen from outside his home. In Framingham they crossed the path of State Trooper Irwin Arntz, a rookie, who spotted the car as stolen.

When they refused to halt he pursued in his prowl car, fired several shots and each time he attempted to force the cab to the curb it swerved in his path, the trooper said.

Then Officer Arntz, a graduate of the State Police school, used some technique. He focussed a searchlight on the windshield of the cab. Keefe and McAlinden were held, facing charges of intoxication and refusing to stop for an officer's signal.

But the night was young for THAT taxicab.

Goodsoe took a train to Framingham, he testified in Brighton court today, and started to drive his cab back to Boston. On the way, he said, he stopped for a few drinks.

At North Beacon st., Brighton, police said, he collided with a car driven by John Hamilton of Frederick st., Belmont. The taxicab came up smiling—two crumpled fenders. They added that Goodsoe left it and wandered around until Brighton police picked him up.

In court today he was held in $1000 bail on charges of drunkenness and operating to endanger. There will be a hearing on Jan. 25.

Ice Delays Hunt For Boys' Bodies

Fighting near zero temperature and icy winds, divers, fishermen and police today resumed search for the bodies of three boys, drowned Monday off Carson beach, South Boston, when ice floes on which they were playing tipped them into the harbor waters.

Under the direction of Supt. Edward W. Fellon and Capts. Joseph MacKinnon and Lawrence Dunn, two fishermen patrolled the the ice-filled waters in an effort to locate the bodies.

Divers Fred and Ralph Wallace broke through new skim ice near the spot where the boys were last seen in order to explore the dark depths.

The police boat William J. McShane and two lobster boats aided in the search, breaking through newly formed ice which at first prevented any action in the area.

Tides and winds, it is believed, have shifted the bodies from the spot at which Wallace and Ralph Whitehouse and their playmate, Charles Kendall, were last seen.

Despite the biting wind along the beach, parents of the drowned paced the beach today as the search went on.

Britain Fears Plot To Blow Rail Lines

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Great Britain's 600,000 railway workers were reported ordered on the alert today for acts of sabotage against the nation's lines.

The vast "detective" system was understood to have been set up as the Daily Mail and Daily Herald reported that a plot by the German Intelligence Service to cripple the nation's railway network had been discovered.

The Daily Mail said the plot was aimed at public works and bridges. No arrests have been announced. The newspaper declared the conspiracy had been discovered only a few days ago and that "counter-measures" were expected to be put into effect shortly.

Meanwhile, the government was believed to be taking steps to find a place for Leslie Hore-Belisha in the war cabinet.

A move to set up a ministry coordinating all Britain's economic war efforts with Hore-Belisha as its head gained momentum as echoes of his "public hearing" in Parliament over dismissal as war minister died away.

The proposed ministry, it was explained, would have a broader scope than the present ministry of economic warfare headed by Ronald Hibbert Cross. The present ministry's tasks are confined principally to contraband control.

The pro-government press termed the Hore-Belisha resignation a "closed incident," while critical newspapers expressed disappointment that statements by Hore-Belisha and Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons yesterday failed to disclose specific reasons for the change.

Chamberlain's statement that "it may not be long" before Hore-Belisha may serve in another position added to speculation that he might become economic minister.

Also revived was talk of the appointment of a defense minister in charge of the entire army, navy and air force. First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill has been mentioned for the post.

The Italian freighter Ernani, 6619 tons, rammed the lightship Brake. The lightship remained afloat, but was badly damaged and a lifeboat took off her crew.

Nearby, the Italian freighter Premuda, 4427-tons, ran aground and lifeboats rescued her crew of 30.

ITALIANS WARNED WAR MAY COME

ROME, Jan. 17 (INS)—Italy may be forced to go to war "at any moment," Ettore Muti, new secretary-general of the Fascist party, warned today at a conference of Fascist chiefs of central Italy.

"We must not be lulled to sleep under the illusion that the present situation (including Italian neutrality) will be perpetuated," he said.

"Italy at any moment may face the necessity of taking up arms."

Muti, 37-year-old war veteran, spoke with the authority not only of his own high position, but that gained by his close connections with Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

Ciano, it was said, was largely responsible for the appointment of Muti to succeed Achille Starace as head of the party.

BOLSHEVISM RAPPED

Muti demanded of his Fascist chiefs at today's meeting "absolutely uncompromising faithfulness to fascist principles, and opposition to democracy, bolshevism and 'middle-classism.'"

Reaffirming fascism's policies of imperialism, racism and national self-sufficiency, Muti called on Fascists to prepare to face increasing moral and material trials.

TIGHTEN NATION'S MORALE

Drastic action, he indicated would be taken to thighten up the nation's morale and ward off "relaxation," which would be pernicious at the present time.

He warned against unfounded optimism, adding—probably in reference to recent Anglo-French overtures:

"It is absurd and dangerous to put too much stock in recent unfounded and unjustified manifestations of international sympathy."

Virginio Gayda, authoritative editor of Giornale D'Italia, today scoffed at "foreign mistakes" in interpreting the recent changes in party and government personnel, which involved Muti's appointment in a general shakeup.

"More than ever," Gayda wrote, "Italy today must affirm and defend her individuality, her interest in liberty, and her other attitudes."

108 Missing On 3 Sunken British Subs

LONDON, Jan. 17 (AP)—The admiralty announced today that a total of 108 officers and men were missing aboard three British submarines, loss of which was announced yesterday, but indicated that the death list may be less since Germany had reported some of them rescued.

The submarines and their complements were listed as follows:

Seahorse, five officers and 34 men; Undine four officers and 26 men; Starfish, five officers and 34 men.

An admiralty communique said: "The German wireless has announced that part of the crews of the Undine and Starfish have been rescued but their names are not yet available."

Commanders of the three vessels were Lieut.-Commdr. A. S. Jackson of the Undine, Lieut. D. S. Massey of the Seahorse and Lieut. T. A. Turner of the Starfish.

Sweden's Reply Defies Soviet

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17 (INS)—Mincing no words, Premier P. A. Hansson today replied to Soviet pressure with the defiant announcement that Sweden would aid Finland all she chose.

"Sweden will defend her independence," Hansson told the Riksdag (Parliament) as he opened a debate on foreign affairs.

"Any attempts to violate Sweden's neutrality will be met with al means at our disposal."

Hansson's sharp retort was the latest and sternest development in a series of exchanges between the Scandinavian States and Moscow.

London Denies Exeter Has Been Beached

LONDON, Jan. 17 (INS)—Reports to the effect that the British cruiser Exeter has been beached at the British Falkland Islands naval base are incorrect, it was stated authoritatively today.

"The Exeter has not been beached anywhere," officials said.

The Exeter participated in the sea battle on Dec. 13 off the Uruguayan coast in which the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee was forced to run for cover to Montevideo harbor, where it later was scuttled.

Maybe some of our readers will recall that for a time we were in quite a fret over the idea of New York State adopting the pari-mutuels system of race track betting. We thought it would be a bad thing for the state but the voters favored it by an overwhelming majority, so we dried up. What the voters want is what they should have.

Now we see that the whole business is somewhat muddled up in the Legislature which is supposed to pass a measure to get the mutuels to working. All kinds of resolutions have been introduced including one to appropriate $50,000 to finance a study of the question, which is of course silly.

The Legislature can get all the information it requires at the price of a few cents worth of stamps by writing the racing commissions of Florida, Maryland, California, Rhode Island, Illinois, Massachusetts, Kentucky, and the other states in which the system is employed with more or less success.

We still think that pari-mutuels betting will be bad for New York State financially, because of the way it will drain the resources of the various communities, and morally because it will encourage gambling, but since it is the will of the majority we think the Legislature should stop fumbling around with the matter and set up a working arrangement forthwith.

There is nothing difficult about this. It is only necessary for the legislators to copy the method that is now yielding the higest revenue to the state in which it is employed, inasmuch as revenue to the state is supposed to be the prime reason for the pari-mutuels in the first place.

If the legislators are going to listen to every crackpot idea presented to them, the bookmakers will be doing business at the same old stands next racing season in New York, and the will of the majority will be knocked cock-eyed.

The muddle began when Senator John F. Dunnigan, daddy of the pari-mutuels movement in New York state, introduced a bill that he claims would produce the $10,000,000 revenue to the state which he made the basis of his argument for the system. Nearly everyone laughed right out loud the first time the senator mentioned the figure because a return of that nature to the state on almost any basis that could be figured out would involve an incredible amount of betting.

Perhaps the laughter made Sen. Dunnigan a little mad and perhaps he said to himself, well, I'll show 'em. So when he sat down and wrote out his bill he provided for four more tracks in the state, including two more in the Metropolitan area, for a 10 per cent "take" to the state of the total money wagered at the tracks, even including what is known as the breakage, and made mandatory on the present track owners increases in crowd capacities and parking spaces that would involve huge expenditures.

Upon publication of the terms of Sen. Dunnigan's bill the track owners began letting out wails of anguish that are still reverberating o'er hill and vale. Nearly everybody else had some complaint about the good senator's document, yet oddly enough, we do not subscribe to all these squawks.

Johnson Sees F. D. Re-elected

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17 (AP)—Re-election of President Roosevelt was predicted by General Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator and frequent critic of the New Deal administration.

During a question-and-answer period at the annual dinner of the Philadelphia Merchants Association, he was asked whether he thought Vice President Garner would win the Democratic nomination.

Johnson replied that Garner would announce, possibly next month, that he would not be a candidate.

"And then," he continued, "a crown of gold speech will be made by some orator and Roosevelt will be nominated by acclamation and elected by all the dissident and subsidize dgroups in the United States—I'm sorry to say."

N. Y. Coal Truck Drivers Strike

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—With the temperature far below freezing, coal deliveries in four boroughs of Greater New York were partially paralyzed today as the vanguard of 5000 coal handlers went on strike.

The walk-out, threatening millions of office workers and apartment dwellers with a mid-winter shivering siege, followed collapse of negotiations between the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs and the Coal Merchants and Fuel Merchants associations.

Thinks F. D. Will Spurn 3rd Term

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17 (INS)—President Roosevelt will be nominated for a third term, but will decline the nomination, Democratic State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach declared today in announcing that the 16 Ohio delegates-at-large will be pledged to support him for another term.

The delegates will be pledged to Sen. A. V. Donahey as "favorite son" candidate. Limbach said, but first will be required to support the New Deal.

'Met' Opera Puzzles 14 Tenement Kids

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Fourteen round-eyed tenement kids from the East Side got their first look at grand opera last night from impeccable plush chairs in the scarlet parterre boxes of Mrs. Vincent Astor and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

From their vantage point in the famous "diamond horseshoe" of the Metropolitan Opera House they watched in squirming excitement and some puzzlement—as Lily Pons and Giovanni Martinelli sang the French opera, "Lakme."

They came for their night out amid the gilt and glitter of the "other half" as guests of Mrs. I. J. Fox, who rewarded them thusly for writing prize essays on music. It cost her $200 to rent the Astor and Vanderbilt boxes for the evening.

PLOT EXPLAINED

Fifteen-year-old Shirley Belfry, the only one of the seven girls and seven boys who understood French, acted as liaison agent between the singers, the plot and the other children.

"The fat man (Martinelli) is singing some stuff about love," she said. "I can't understand the lady (Miss Pons)—she has a top-story voice.

"It's a sad story," she told two little boys, who wore a glazed look. "They both eat mushrooms and die at the end—after a lot more singing."

A furious controversy raged over whether Miss Pons was as pretty as in the movies, and all agreed with Rose Caputi, 14, that "the heavy make-up spurls her beauty."

PREFERS BING CROSBY

Eleven-year-old Julius Rudnyanski, partisan to Miss Pons because he had met her in her dressing room after the first act, thought she was "wonderful and kind," but agreed with the others that she "didn't have as good a tone as Bing Crosby."

Silent amid the chatter sat Joseph Mazzola, a slim boy of 15. His dark, thoughtful eyes were fixed on the orchestra pit. His father, now dead, had played the French horn there in the time when Caruso was a voice, instead of a legend.

The children voted the opera "more fun than a movie the first time," although one still was waiting hopefully for "some cowboy music" when the curtain rang down to stay.

Summing up the evening for the group, Dorothy Havelka, 14, wrote:

"I am no judgment of such things, but this should take the cake."

HUNT RACE FAN RADIO STATION

New England race fans, deprived of regular wire service, have been and still are—recipients of race track information by an unlicensed radio station operating on the North Shore, the Boston Evening American learned today.

For many weeks, the Federal Communication Commission agents from Washington have been investigating an unlicensed station "somewhere north of Boston," but whose location they have been unable to determine.

LOCATION IS MYSTERY

This is a station it was learned today, set up by a race track service organization whose regular wire service has been cut off and whose proprietors are now in litigation.

Charles C. Kolster of Somerville, inspector in charge of the New England district of the Federal Communications Commission, admitted that there had been violations of the commission's rules in the past seven weeks, but he refused to comment further.

First word of the illegal station come from the FCC in Washington, which inquired as to the operators of the apparently unlicensed station "somewhere north of Boston."

PLAN PROSECUTION

For weeks the radio indentifiers have been attempting to locate the sending station, the Evening American learned today, but all they could discover was that race results were being flashed.

The Washington report said the FCC agents were attempting to get evidence with a view to prosecution.

Roche Agrees To Pay Wife

On his promise to continue paying his estranged wife $5 a week, former Mayor James A. Roche of Everett today won a four-month continuance of non-support charges brought against him in Malden court.

The ex-mayor was brought into court several days ago on a complaint sworn out by Mrs. Roche.

Today, however, Probation Officer David P. Rossiter, Jr., told the court Roche had been making the $5 weekly payments regularly and would continue to do so.

Judge Elbridge G. Davis thereupon continued Roche's case to May 8.

Birthday Ball Has Auto Prize

The $1 ticket for the President's Birthday Ball at Boston Garden Jan. 29 will include a chance on a 1940 sedan, Chairman Peter F. Tague announced today.

The drawing will be held the night of the ball, he said, and the lucky stub will be taken from a monster revolving barrel.

Louis F. Capelle, noted producer, said spectacular stage and screen acts will be shown that night.

"Because the European situation has most people military-minded," he said, "the military show of the ball will be one of it's best features."

DOWD HALTED JAIL GRAFT, WIFE SAYS

Dowd, is saying—and asking—this:

"Johnny Dowd had the town by the tail. He didn't need to swing it. All he had to do was sling it—over his shoulder like an empty sack and let the riches that go with his position drop out of the mouth of the sack, and into his pockets. John Dowd had everything. What did he want more?"

"Mrs. Dowd, we shall change the last part of the question slightly, because in the eyes of a dispassionate chronicler of assorted crime and life as it goes on here around the face of the clock, a man is innocent until he is proven guilty. (I might say that the entire structure of Anglo-Saxon law holds with this assumption, too. Therefore, we make this slight change, and submit it to you the question.)

"John Dowd had all he should have wanted. He had power, and with it (there is a distinction) he had respect. He had a well-paid office, and his share of the deputy sheriffs' pool was a heavy piece of change. And that share of the deputies' pool had come to be accepted as due and payable to the sheriff of Suffolk County.

DREW $25,000 A YEAR

"That was not of your husband's making. Tradition and precedent gave that little 'take' legitimacy—of a fashion. Also, as sheriff of Suffolk County he had a commodious and comfortable home. He had his living expenses. In unofficial estimates, the wages, expenses and other appurtenances of his high office were worth approximately $25,000 a year in cash of the realm.

"Precedent, combined with your husband's admitted genius as a political campaigner heightened the prospect of this being a lifetime tenure of office (and $25,000 annually). Now, Mrs. Dowd, we put our question, with a slight modification. John Dowd indeed had the town by the tail. He had everything a man wanted. Why on earth did he want—and now comes the slight change—IF HE DID WANT—anything more?"

Perhaps right now, our readers will permit us to take a breath! Let us consider the setting of our little drama. Her face drawn and her cheeks lined and moist from the tears of an unexpected Gethsemane, Mrs. Mary Dowd is seated taut and nervous on the divan, the overstuffed variety. Her fingers are quavery as she fumblingly manages a cigarette. The comforting presence of the right kind of a mother buoys her a bit. A mutual friend of hers and ours—a swell guy with a billiken face and a heart of a thousand karat gold—sits nearby. An arbiter, if you like.

Mrs. Dowd is wearing a housecoat. She has not a speck of make-up on. Mrs. O'Connell, her mother, wears a pretty, bright, light blue and white house-dress. Our mutual friend sits with his arms folded, and calm. He is not an arbiter. His attitude is that of a man at ease. From this meeting, because of the trust that comes with knowledge and friendship of the principals, he anticipates no embarrassing moments.

MRS. DOWD ANSWERS

If there was to be an embarrassing moment in this interview—we had come to it now. Politely or otherwise, it is always difficult to confront a devoted wife with a question of her husband's guilt. Getting down to elementals, stripping the circumlocution from the situation, we had asked Mary Dowd a direct question: "Is he guilty, or is he not guilty!"

"Why did he want—if he did—anything more!"

Mrs. Dowd didn't waver. She looked us straight in the eye, and answered with a simplicity and forthrightness that was welcome—yes and lovely. The embarrassing situation had been dissolved by the ring of faith and truth in her answer.

John L. Dowd has one very loyal advocate—yes, two, as we must add Mary's mother, Mrs. O'Connell—even if the world turns out to be against him.

Here was her answer:

"John didn't want any more. It isn't true. He didn't do these things, whatever they say. You'll see, and so will they all."

We are going to pose easier questions to Mrs. John L. Dowd from here to the finish line, but perhaps they will be of more general interest. Perhaps they will be interesting to John Dowd's successor, Sheriff Freddie Sullivan, whose physical stature is not dissimilar to the little man from another part of town who had his chance and lost it.

"What about these accusations of laxity in managing the jailhouse, Mrs. Dowd. They say your husband permitted men and women inmates to mingle, and that he dropped the bars beyond the point of safety!"

Mrs. Dowd is very positive about the answers to some of these charges.

"It was not laxity. It was being—being humane," Mrs. Dowd replied. "I can't answer all of these questions from personal observation because my place was in my home, and not in the jail itself. Of what I can tell you from talks with my John, I would say that charges about the men and women mixing are untrue.

CONDITIONS BETTERED

"I can answer questions about privileges extended the prisoners while my husband was sheriff because I was responsible for some of them. I will take the blame for making it possible for the women whose conduct was good to smoke. I will tell how that came about. But first, I wonder if the people of Boston know that when John took charge of the jail that the women's cells were locked at 4:30 p. m. on Saturday, and not opened again until 6:30 a. m. the next Monday? These poor people, most of them confined for misdemeanors, were kept cooped up throughout the week-end.

"John changed that. I don't see how there could be criticism of that. The other way was so cruel. There was never any trouble over this act of charity, was there? So much has been written that I have missed a lot of it." (We didn't remember.)

"Another thing John did—he ordered that the prisoners be given butter with their bread. And I told you about dessert for Sunday dinners. I will tell you now about how the rules were changed regarding smoking by the women.

"Some of these poor things used to come to the house to do the cleaning. One day one of the girls asked me, if, as a great favor, I'd permit her to have a smoke. I answered 'Certainly,' and as the girl produced a cigarette I looked on with amazement and then started talking with her.

"You can't imagine where she was carrying the cigarette. It was concealed in a curl of her hair. We took it out and then patted her hair back in place. I had never seen anything like that before, and I was curious.

"She was enjoying the cigarette so much that it was a pleasure to be able to give the poor thing that little pleasure. 'Mrs. Dowd, I can't tell you how much I appreciate this,' she said. Then she looked at her cigarette, as I remember, and then spoke to me again. 'Cigarettes are a real luxury to us, but those of us who have the price to buy them wouldn't mind that even—except that there's a rule against women smoking.'

"'How much do you pay for cigarettes?' I asked. 'They cost us $1.25 a pack,' she said. I was astonished. I couldn't imagine anyone taking such an advantage of these unfortunate women. I couldn't believe it. 'Do you mean to tell me that you pay $1.25 for a package of cigarettes which can be bought for a tenth of that price?' She repeated the price, and then asked me not to say anything about it.

"But I decided to take it up with John, and I did. And I know that he put a stop to such extortion."

(Another revealing installment of George Holland's exclusive interview with Mrs. John F. Dowd will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Act on Threats To Scrubwomen

Charges by scrubwomen that they have been treated unfairly and persecuted since they testified in the Dowd case were ordered turned over today to Sheriff Frederick R. Sullivan, for immediate action before the Suffolk County courthouse commission.

Charges, made by at least six women courthouse workers, are at the same time under investigation by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, who ordered his assistant, George McGunicle, to interview each complainant.

The women all are working under a certain courthouse employe, who has steadily employed "slave-driving" methods since they "talked" in the Dowd investigation, according to information given Dist. Atty. Foley.

Two of the women turned over to authorities letters they had received from a Boston lawyer, declaring he had been retained by a certain courthouse employe and threatening legal action unless the scrubwomen stopped making defamatory remarks about his client.

What made the scrubwomen rebel against the harsh treatment they received was an alleged assault committed on a woman who protested.

For Joyful Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Real Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This splendid recipe is used by millions every year, because it makes such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs due to colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its soothing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of very effective and quick-acting cough remedy, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of coughs, giving you delightful relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.

Cop's Wife Held In Shooting

the judge, Sergt. King, police prosecutor, said the wounded officer, still at Newton hospital with a bullet wound in his leg, would not be used as a witness against his wife.

He has steadfastly maintained that his wound was the result of an accident, that he had dropped the gun and shot himself, Sergt. King told the court.

Discovery of a bullet hole in a bathroom door and photographs made by a police cameraman at the Scott home led to the arrest of Mrs. Scott.

CLAIMS HE SHOT SELF

Police charge she fired the gun while in an argument with her husband.

After the shooting he crawled to a telephone and summoned aid from the police station. He told brother officers that he had shot himself with his service revolver.

Police officials, dissatisfied with his story of the accident, investigated. Lieut. Daniel E. Crowley and Sergts. John Sheridan and Michael Sullivan reported a family quarrel had preceded the pistol discharge.

Solons Balk on Big U. S. Loan to Finland

mittee would consider thoroughly the President's suggestion for enlarging the capital structure of the Export-Import Bank, which already has granted Finland a $10,000,000 credit.

Adoption of Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion would permit the bank to grant further credits to Finland and South American nations. Under existing law, the bank cannot have more than $100,000,000 in trade-promotion loans outstanding at any one time. Bank officials say its lending capacity is nearly used up at present.

JAP DISCUSSION SEEN

If any legislation was passed, leaders said, it would take weeks and maybe months because an agreement had been reached that, once the banking committee had acted, its report should be considered by the foreign relations committee.

The foreign relations group had a regular meeting scheduled today for consideration of its routine calendar. There was a possibility, however, that Sen. Gillett (D.) of Iowa), might bring up his resolutions to apply neutrality act restrictions to the Sino-Japanese war.

Gillette proposed his resolution after Sen. Danaher (R) of Ct.), had offered one to have Congress apply the act to the Russo-Finnish conflict. Under the law, Congress as well as the President may declare a state of war exists abroad which necessitates application of the shipping and financial restrictions of the act.

Asked at his press conference why the act had not been put into operation in connection with the invasion of Finland, the President said thus far that was an undeclared war.

Neither Japan nor China have unofficially declared war either and the President has declined from invoking the law in order not with their conduct.

Sen. Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, told reporters he preferred the method of aid suggested by the President to a direct governmental loan to the Finnish government.

SUGGESTS FINNS SWAP

Rep. Rayburn of Texas, the House Democratic chieftain, suggested during debate that Finland could exchange with other countries the non-military goods already obtained here on credit for more urgently needed articles.

"It would be none of our business," he declared.

Rayburn's remark was in reply to a statement by Rep. Fish (R.) New York, that because of restrictions affecting the $1,000,000 credit already granted, Finland had been able to use less than $1,000,000 of it so far, and further credits of this kind would not be of much help.

Fish, like Sen. McNary of Oregon, the senate Republican leader, criticized the chief executive for not making more "specific recommendations, but agreed some aid should be given the little republic.

McNary said he might call Senate Republicans to meet Friday for a discussion of their position.

"If we lift the restrictions in the Neutrality Act on credits to foreign nations, it is easy to see we have destroyed the very heart of the Neutrality Act," asserted Sen. George (D.) Georgia. "If you break down the restrictions in the case of Finland, the hour approaches when the pressure will be doubled and redoubled to break down the restrictions in the case of Great Britain."

In the Senate, George asserted that if a loan was to be made to Finland Congress ought to make the decision itself and not pass the buck to some lending agency created by Congress. Declaring that a loan would be an unneutral act, he added:

"It is no different, on the basis of international law, than if we sent an American battleship to Finland. If you want to do that, let's do it, but let's stop whipping the devil around the stump and take the responsibility for it ourselves."

Canvass Labor For Finn Relief

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—The national labor division of the Finnish relief fund, at a luncheon meeting in New York, launched a nation-wide campaign among labor unions for an immediate and effective response to Finland's call for aid.

Herbert Hoover, chairman of the fund, Mayor LaGuardia, Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor and David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union urged that organized labor appropriate substantial contributions.

WINTER GRIPS N. Y. STATE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Winter clasped upstate New York in an icy embrace today after a brief January thaw, strong northwest winds accompanying rapidly dropping temperatures that left highways in central and northern sections ice-glazed or blocked by snowdrifts.

HEARTS and flowers will be the theme of Betsy Inches' coming out party which will be a Valentine dance, Feb. 14th at the Milton Club . . . Invitations to this gay February dance were just mailed yesterday so it's still a bit early for Betsy and her mother, Mrs. Henderson Inches of Chestnut Hill, to have a complete list of ushers and debutantes who will be guests at the ushers' dinner . . . One thing is certain, however, and that is that Betsy's two cousins, Charles E. Inches, Jr., and James Rousmaniere will be head ushers . . .

Betsy is one of this season's popular debs . . . Natural and wholesome, she has an engaging smile and jolly personality which have won her loads of friends among the boys in the stag line . . . She loves athletics, favors tweeds for daytime and seldom wears a hat on her blonde locks . . . She is a provisional member of the Junior League and belongs to the Vincent Club . . .

Erdna Reggio Bride

WEARING HER MOTHER'S wedding gown of ivory satin trimmed with heirloom Brussels lace, Erdna Reggio of Brookline is being married this afternoon to Howland Garner Rogers, son of Mr. Gardner Rogers of Washington, D. C., and the late Mrs. Rogers . . .

The ceremony in St. Mary's Church, Brookline, is being followed by a small family reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. A. Nicholas Reggio . . .

The bride's veil is attached to a coronet of orange blossoms and she is carrying white roses . . . Soft green velvet, with a gold mesh headdress and bouquet of tailsman roses fashions the costume of her sister, M. Louise Reggio, the maid of honor and only attendant . . . Howard Kellogg is serving as best man . . .

Following their wedding trip the couple will live in Brookline . . . Erdna is a member of the Vincent Club and made her debut in 1935-36 . . . Her bridegroom attended Harvard with the class of 1937 . . .

Hosts at Gardenia Ball

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES G. PLIMPTON are entertaining a group of friends at the Gardenia Ball which will be held for the benefit of the Charlotte Cushman Club at the Copley Plaza next Tuesday evening . . . Their guests will include Baron and Baroness Kurg von Nidda, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Whiting, T. Barnet Plimpton and Mrs. Walter Bradford . . .

In the Rockwell Tenneys' party at this gay June-in-January affair will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Muller and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund S. Childs . . . A lively cabaret and a bevy of debutantes selling fragrant gardenias will be features of the entertainment.

IF YOU SEE THESE DEBS, Nancy Putnam Smith and Sally Smith, dashing in and out of stores and offices during the next few days, it's ten to one they'll not be buying, as usual, but selling, for they are among the debutantes hard at work soliciting ads to fill the pages of the Vincent Club show program. Nancy Putnam Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abbot Smith of Weston, and Sally Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Smith of Fitchburg.

Social Notes

SOCIETY SCRIBES in the nation's capital are counting Mark Dall of Boston, Harvard '37 graduate, as one of the serious contenders for the heart and hand of Carol Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Woods, Jr. of Washington . . . Mark's family winters at Coconut Grove, Florida, and he is a cousin of Curtis Dall, former husband of Anna Roosevelt Boettiger . . .

Doing their bit for "sweet charity" is a universal pastime of debs in every city . . . so it is not surprising to learn that Rosemary Merrill, Washington deb, who is a popular member of the summer colony on the North Shore, is helping the cause of a benefit performance of Abe Lincoln in Illinois, by posing in period gowns worn in the movie . . . One of the creations, a copy of a flowered taffeta worn by Mary Todd, is very appropriate for Rosemary's piquant style . . . She is a petite brunette, who wears her hair in soft coronet braids, and her own evening gowns are often fashioned along the demure, old fashioned lines of bygone days . . .

Parents interested in discovering the special aptitudes of their offspring will be interested in the next Parents' League lecture at which John O'Connor will discuss "The Square Peg in the Round Hole" . . . Mr. O'Connor is director of the Human Engineering Laboratory of Stevens Institute of Technology . . . The meeting will be held at the Chilton Club a week from today and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson is in charge of invitations.

You Can Be Beautiful

"Liquid Massage" for Hair

By ARLINE GOULD

IF YOUR collar is beginning to rival the snowbanks . . . it's time to think of midwinter reconditioning of the scalp . . . and this is a two-way proclamation, aimed at men as well as at women.

Have you always regarded the subject of hair tonics carelessly? Probably you have, and have gone on dosing your poor head with a tonic which was intended for another type. Start in right then, and save one of your most valuable possessions. Is your hair dry? Oily? Grey or white?

There is a very fine tonic which comes in types to fit all three . . . and it is a liquid massage for your scalp and hair follicles that rivals the best job a Swedish masseuse performs on the flesh of Hollywood lovelies.

With it you should use a scalp, or shampoo, brush. This is a handy little thing, about an inch wide, with stiff bristles, and a handle that's pointed like a duck's tail. This is to be used to part your hair, and the brush should actually be used on the scalp and around the base of the hair. You'd be surprised what this can do in the way of stimulating new growth.

Use the tonic after a shampoo, or to take the place of a shampoo when you have a cold. It leaves the hair sparkling clean, soft and fluffy.

For a short time you're going to be able to acquire both the brush and a 16-ounce bottle of hair tonic, a $3.50 value, for $2.25.

If you would like to learn more about this hair health and beauty special, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope

Try These Puddings

By MARTHA LEE

The pudding season isn't over by any means with the passing of the mid-winter holidays. The heavier steamed puddings popular on yuletide menus are not in frequent demand, but the everyday cottage and bread puddings, the lighter steamed carrot, fig and prune puddings are cold weather menu-standbys still to be much enjoyed.

COTTAGE PUDDING

1¾ cups sifted flour
2½ tsp baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ tsp. lemon extract
2-3 cup milk

Mix flour, baking powder and salt, and sift three times. Cream shortening until soft; add sugar gradually, beating until light; beat in egg and flavoring. Add flour alternately with milk, beating until smooth after each addition; turn into greased square pan 8x8x2 inches. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. to 375 deg. F.) for 30 to 45 minutes, or until done Cut in squares, and serve with whipped cream or with a dessert sauce. Makes 6 servings.

APRICOT BROWN BETTY

5 slices rye bread
¼ cup melted butter
1½ cups stewed apricots
½ cup sugar
¾ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. mace

Break bread into fine crumbs and mix with melted butter. Arrange a layer of the crumbs in a well-buttered baking dish, then a layer of apricots; sprinkle with a part of the sugar, cinnamon and mace, which have been mixed together. Repeat layers until all the ingredients are used. Cover the dish and bake in a 350 deg. F. oven for 1 hour. Remove the cover during the last 15 minutes of baking.

CARROT PUDDING

2-3 cup sifted flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. baking soda
¾ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
¼ tsp. nutmeg
2-3 cup sugar
2-3 cup currants
2-3 cup raisins
2-3 cup grated raw potatoes
¾ cup grated raw carrots
1-3 cup milk

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add the fruits and stir until well coated; stir in potatoes, carrots and milk. Fill a greased 1-quart mold 2-3 full, cover tightly and steam 2½ hours. Serve with hard sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Serve the plainer puddings with an appropriately rich sauce such as the one given below:

SPICY APRICOT PUDDING SAUCE

2 thin slices unpeeled orange
½ cup granulated sugar
¾ cup butter
Few grains salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. mace
1½ cups apricot nectar
½ cup cream
2 tbsp. cornstarch
12 finely cut maraschino cherries

Cut orange slices into very small pieces, combine with sugar, butter, salt, spices and ¼ cup nectar in a saucepan and stir to blend. Bring to a boil and cook and stir until liquid is nearly evaporated and mixture is thick. Add remainder of nectar and blended cream and cornstarch and cook and stir until mixture thickens (3 to 4 minutes). Remove from heat, add cherries and blend. Serve warm or cold over puddings. Substitute peach-nectarine, pear, plum or peach nectar of the whole-fruit variety for the apricot nectar of the recipe. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PRINTS always bring the breath of spring with them into a winter-bound room . . . particularly these two we found livening up the racks at a grand sale. By their pockets you shall know them, the forward-looking fashions which owe their jauntiness to the great Schiaparelli. Her immense patch pockets on the sober uniform-like daytime suits for Frenchwomen certainly started something. And here is the latest version, a millefleur print on high-pastel grounds, with two big patch pockets near center-front! It's a nice rayon crepe, whose pockets and collar are piped with a vivid contrasting color. A mite dressier is the flowery print, aqua or rose on a dark ground. Those shirred sleeves are very pretty. You may have these frocks for $6 apiece, or two for $11, and there are loads of styles from which to choose.

Love And Marriage

Husband Has Let Her Down

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I am married to a man I love dearly. He is everything any woman could desire. He gives me his pay check every week. He never looks at another woman. He will help with the housework. Yet I'm not hapy.

"When we were married, our joint salaries amounted to $30 a week, and we were very comfortable. Then came the realization that I was not living the kind of life I had hoped for. I wanted children to stay home and take care of them, and there was little chance of advancement where my husband worked.

"He studied for three different Civil Service examinations, but was unable to pass any of them. He then decided to take up another course, which cost a considerable sum of money.

"Realizing the expense, my parents invited us to live with them until my husband could get a start, which he has never succeeded in doing. He has an inferiority complex, is shy, distrustful of himself, and does not make a good impression, though he is absolutely conscientious and faithful.

"I often put in 10 hours a day on my job. I've tried to be forceful with him, and told him I would quit.

"I don't want much, Miss Fairfax, only some sense of security for myself and the children

DESPAIRING WIFE."

It would be so easy to say keep on trying in the hope that your husband would overcome that constitutional weakness, that sense of self-distrust, which prevents an employer from recognizing that he's the faithful plodding type, which makes him worthy of his hire.

In her heart this woman is deeply maternal, and this ineffectual man who tries but never succeeds appeals to her maternal instinct. He is more her child than her husband. If she were to divorce him, how would the separation affect her? Because, in spite of everything, one realizes she loves him.

I shal lbe very glad to have my correspondents write and tell me how they would handle this problem if it were their own.

Bombed by Reds—The crucifix still standing, this Finnish Church shows the power of Russian bombs . . . even as the Soviet high command makes new denials that the Red planes are not bombing churches or civilians.

A GREAT COMMOTION has been caused among radicals and all shades of Reds by the Dies Committee's recent report on Communism in the consumer movement.

The Committee is being accused of wantonly branding ALL consumer organizations, and ALL the members of ALL such organizations, as Communists.

But the Committee DID NOT DO THAT.

It did identify CERTAIN so-called "consumer" organizations in which KNOWN Communists and KNOWN "fellow travelers" of the Communists were found to be lurking—or active.

And that was not a wholly NEW DISCLOSURE.

Weeks previously, Earl Browder, as a Committee witness, had identified one of the same organizations—The Consumers' National Federation—as a "transmission belt" for Communism.

That was a highly significant revelation, for the reason that the Federation was devised supposedly to be a CENTRAL UNION of consumer groups and consequently, BY MERELY INFLUENCING THE FEDERATION a few Communists and "fellow travelers" could easily and unobstrusively influence ALL OF THE FEDERATION'S MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS.

There was no clamor of protest over Browder's testimony.

ANOTHER CHARGE is that the Dies Committee violated "civil rights" by linking designated "consumer" organizations to Communism without hearing their "witnesses."

The accusation refutes itself, for the evidence before the committee was mainly DOCUMENTARY, and a well documented case in a legislative inquiry needs no oral testimony to sustain it.

NEITHER CAN AUTHENTICATED DOCUMENTS BE DISCREDITED BY ORAL DENIALS.

Actually the Dies Committee report divulged little actually new about Communism in the consumer movement.

What the Committee did do, very effectively, was to present THE ENTIRE PICTURE to THE ENTIRE PUBLIC and this of course was a distinct public service.

Other persons had tried to perform precisely the same service, without incurring any deluge of Red radical wrath.

LAST OCTOBER an article by Stanley High on the subject was published in The Forum and re-published in The Readers' Digest.

The Forum has been generally regarded as a "Liberal" magazine, and Stanley High, was formerly a New Deal adviser and a founder besides of the New Deal's "Good Neighbor League."

Under the title "Guinea Pigs Left March," Stanley High said:

"The pressure experts . . . have invaded the consumer movement.

"Their apparent objective is not to increase the consumer's part in the operation of the American economic system.

"THEY ARE OUT TO DISCREDIT AND HAMSTRING, IF NOT TO DESTROY, THE SYSTEM.

"SOME OF THEM EVEN PROPHESY THAT THIS MOVEMENT WILL BE THE MOST POTENT OF ALL THE FORCES WHICH, FROM VARIOUS QUARTERS, ARE CURRENTLY LAYING SIEGE TO OUR ECONOMIC CITADELS."

Discussing in his article some of the methods of the propagandists, Mr. High described—just as the Dies Committee report has SINCE described—their false and incessant attacks on legitimate advertising as a business institution.

HE POINTED OUT that even STUDY COURSES AND TEXT BOOKS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES are being utilized. In one instance, a high school pupil won a prize with an essay which made the ridiculous statement that "about 90 per cent of all advertising is either misleading or dishonest."

"It is obvious," commented Mr. High, "that the net result of this campaign among the nation's young people is to create the conviction that advertising, as observable in the United States, is without a respectable leg to stand on . . .

"The step from that callow generalization to the conviction that the entire economic order is in an equally disreputable plight is a very short one."

Mr. High gave another instance—that of a high school display containing "a Chamber of Horrors Exhibit," allegedly "exposing" the "hoodwinking, chiseling and gyping that is big business."

"Such generalizations," Mr. High said, "are LEAGUES REMOVED from ANYTHING which could legitimately go by the name of consumer education. Somewhere en route to enlightenment, the consumer jumped the tracks and wound up not so much enlightened as indoctrinated. There is danger the consumer movement may be similarly derailed.

"The consequences would be bad for the economy of the nation, and PROBABLY EVEN WORSE FOR THE CONSUMER'S POCKETBOOK."

In sum and substance, the consumer movement must be purged of Communism if it is to survive and be of service, for Communism always contaminates anything that it touches.

Far from injuring the legitimate consumer movement, therefore, the Dies Committee may be ITS ONLY SALVATION.

Somewhere in America

SOMEWHERE in America the sunset's fiery glow . . . falls like a benediction on a modest bungalow . . . Along the peaceful village street the twilight shadows steal . . . and Mother in her apron, now prepares the evening meal . . . The children, followed by a dog, go racing down the street . . . a Daddy, coming home from work, with joyous cries to greet.

But somewhere in a foreign land their eyes the townsfolk train . . . not on the sunset's glory—but a hostile bombing plane.

Human Side of News -:- By EDWIN C. HILL

THE National Geographic Society announces that it is sending a new archeological expedition to the "Egypt of the Americas," in Southern Mexico.

The region to be explored is in Vera Cruz Province, once the northern home of the most remarkable civilization this continent ever knew; for there, as in Guatemala, lived the Mayan peoples, a race which was great before the pyramids were built and whose temples, swallowed and strangled by the jungles of Central America and Mexico, adorned great cities thousands of years before the Sphinx turned its cold and cryptic smile upon the Egyptian plains.

PREHISTORIC RUINS IN SOUTHERN MEXICO

"Mayans Were a Mighty Race Before Christ Was Born"

AFTER lost centuries, scholars, such as the National Geographic Society is sending out on the new expedition, are learning to read slowly the stone writings of the great Mayan race, to pierce the veil of one of the oldest, most fascinating stories of mankind.

Whence come they, those Mayans? Some think they crossed over a land bridge from the continent of Atlantis—the lost continent which lies at the bottom of the Atlantic; but we have a date for their arrival in Central America, carved on a great doorway of a palace in Tikal, which records that they arrived twelve thousand forty-two years ago.

They were a mighty race before Christ was born.

Their calendar was so accurate that it identifies any day within a quarter of a million years. It was 15 centuries before the Egyptians matched that knowledge.

A few drops of their blood flow in the veins of the shy, dull tribes that creep about the jungles of this day, lurking among the fragments of the temples and the palaces where priests and bearded kings walked alive.

You see women with slant-eyed, flat-faced babies on their backs, the men loping along under loads that would crush a mule; dumb, stupid, the life crushed out of them, building nothing, knowing nothing of their fathers who set up monuments to blue-eyed gods and golden-bearded kings.

Explorers came as the scientists of the National Geographic Society will come now, bespectacled white men taking notes, trying to read the stirring history of the golden romance of the long past and of these dead people haunting the jungle like ghosts.

Nobody left to answer a thousand questions except the ideis squatting in the jungle, half-frog, half-tiger, squatting and grinning over secrets the white men cannot learn.

Prisoners of the jungle with its stealthy breathing, its eternal creeping, its fatal invincibility—a tideless ocean into which men and his work sink and cease to be.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—What an odd thing it is to find, according to the newspapers, that a group of people who say they belong to "The Christian Front," whatever that organization may be, were planning to overthrow our government by force, the elimination of the Jews and the installing of a dictator!

A "Christian Front" might reasonably be supposed to indicate that the members are followers of Christ, and he was a Jew. Christ never used force to overthrow evil.

How strangely muddled in their thinking people of this kind must be, or else how easily they must be led by people who can make them think whatever they desire.

Sunday was drizzly and damp in the country. We had a good walk in the morning, I managed to pay all of my bills, to read the papers and a number of magazines which I have wanted to read some time and which in Washington I have never been free to sit down and enjoy.

THE Ladies' Home Journal is beginning what promises to be a very interesting series of articles. In different parts of the country it is picking out typical families and trying to introduce them to its readers, so that everyone will really know how these families live and what they do with their lives.

MRS. ROOSEVELT

"Christ Never Used Force"

This particular family of four is in the Middle West in a small town and in the income group below $2,000 a year. I hope that a variety of income levels will be covered, as well as different localities, different types of educational background and various occupations.

If this is done, I think this series might prove of great value in introducing us to people throughout the nation, and making us really feel that we know our neighbors.

Another article in the Atlantic, written by Dean Holmes of Harvard University, on the problems of our public school education was extremely interesting to me. He evidently believes in equality of opportunity for all of our children brought about through State and Federal aid to localities.

He sees this equality of opportunity, however, not as resulting in a cut and dried curriculum through which every child must pass, but as a school system which will provide for every child at every level the best the child is able to assimilate.

THIS ENTAILS giving greater guidance at all times and recognizing the fact that each individual must develop himself or herself in accordance with their gifts. This, of course, emphasizes again the changed conception of what a teacher really should be able to do, and will require a recognition on our part of the value of the teacher.

I have often thought that in our concentration on buildings we have almost lost the conception which we once held that a good teacher with poor tools was better than the best of tools without a good teacher.

It cleared Monday and we had a beautiful drive down the Hudson River. We left Hyde Park about 8:00 and I was glad to have a pleasant day in New York City, for I had a number of appointments which I shall tell you about tomorrow.

RING IS TOO SMALL, "JULIET" SAYS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—"Where's your wedding ring?" Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., demands of Eileen Herrick Lowther at the Stork Club..."It was too small," she explains, "and it's out now being stretched"..."One of America's most prominent young men recently announced that he lost some of his teeth in an accident," an eyewitness reveals at Bertolotti's. "He lost them in a grudge fight at the N. Y. A. C."..."I found out that the Savoy Hotel in London was owned by the D'Oyley Carte Company," Michael Todd, who produced "The Hot Mikado," relates at the Kit Kat. "I was a bit shamefaced, when I met Richard Collett, manager of the D'Oyley Carte, and showed him the 15-cent programs we used for our Mikado show. He asked me for them—and framed them for his office."

"WILLIAM PELLEY, chief of the Silver Shirts, wrote a letter to the Department of Justice, asking them to be patient for one more month," a Federal official informs at Fefe's Monte Carlo. "He wrote that he's disbanding his organization, and then will surrender."..."One of the best known 'Peace' organizations has decided to quit," an editor reports at Moore's. "The officers will tender one final dinner—and then the blow-up."..."After surveying all New York buildings," a realtor states at the Hollywood, "the United States Army has selected the Empire State Building, to become the Eastern Headquarters for National Defense, on M-Day."

FRANCES FARMER

"ONE OF THE 18 men arrested by J. Edgar Hoover has been employed by the Police Department," a detective assures at the Tavern. "And these arrests don't end the case. There will be further arrests in the East"..."Frances Farmer is very ill," an agent informs at the Rainbow Room, "so ill that she may have to quit the Hemingway play, 'The Fifth Column'."

"CHERYL CRAWFORD," a director declares at Colbert's, "is completing arrangements to produce the new Dorothy Thompson-Fritz Kortner play"..."I just saw Ferenc Molnar, the Hungarian playwright," a writer relates at the Gay 90's. "One of his plays had been running in Berlin for 46 weeks, and the producer told Molnar—in Switzerland—he'd like another play. 'I recommend another playwright,' Molnar told him. 'William Shakespeare.' The Nazi producer asked: 'Why Shakespeare?' and Molnar answered: 'Because you don't have to pay him any royalties, either'"..."Maurice Chevalier was offered $5000 a week to work at the fair," a fair executive announces at the Versailles. "He said he'd take it, but wanted us to pay the income taxes. So the deal's off, because that would mean we'd pay more than $8000 a week."

SPRINGFIELD'S GIFT TO THE MOVIES is the marvelous tap-dancer, Eleanor Powell, and Eleanor's contribution to the lore of Hollywood is that she alone, of all the stars, has trouble in keeping her weight up not down . . . Kay Lawrence has a note from Eleanor in which the report of the loss of seven pounds is forwarded . . . Miss Powell shrank in the filming of "Broadway Melody of 1940," in which she dances to a Cole Porter score . . . George M. Cohan is making an especial effort to attend the Boston Baseball Writers' Dinner . . . A tiger for Dave "The King" Wilson The daily double in the second day of the Wilson code book—paying better than 19 to 1, and two other winners for good measure, is setting a pace.

IT OCCURS TO THIS CORNER that the breath-taking "Ice Follies," current at the Boston Garden, needs take no backwater to any spectacle of its genus, and this includes all extravaganzas which have featured Miss Sonja Henie . . . Personally, I will take the gorgeous Miss Bess Eberhardt's charms as being approximately double those held by Miss Henie . . . Miss Evelyn Chandler, on the other hand, is Sonja's superior in all-around skating ability . As a composite, the two youngsters outshine the great Sonja . . . Miss Chandler is not only the superior of lovely little Sonja—she can give cards and spades—yes and little casino—to any man in the world when it comes to doing some incredible skating feats . . These two alone make the "Ice Follies" in this man's book, the best show of the year . . . It would not be a bad idea to get your seats early, preferably at once

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Note to Jack Granata: Jack McCarthy, the handsome and brilliant boss of Filene's men's store, is domiciled temporarily at the Towne House, Los Angeles . . . Your former boss, Charles W. Koerner, would find McCarthy his equal on the golf links, and his superior at the rhumba or the conga . . . The two should know each other, and a telegram from you could effect it . . . And ask that Koerner guy, while you're about it, (like a good fellow) why he's keeping his address a secret . . . We promise to ship no aspiring movie stars to his luxurious hideout.

MRS. DOROTHY FAIRBANKS, the beautiful little helpmate of Sheldon H. Fairbanks, will get a kick out of the feature story in one of the past Sunday's journals which features Sheldon among the town's eligible bachelors, and speculates whether he'll be in the same state of single blessedness—come next Michelmass . . . What makes it funnier is that the Fairbankses are practically inseparable, and that the popular director of the Sportsman's Show even takes the missus with him on business trips .

A MINOR CASUALTY at the City Hospital was the beautiful Nettina Rich, now a Boston secretary but once the "Miss New England" of one of those Atlantic City contests . . . Miss Rich paid a visit to the hospital to see her sister—and fainted at the bedside . . . Both are better . . . Reports of an influenza wave hitting a resort city—with hospitals filled and doctors working night and day—are reported . . . They say the report is authentic, and not started spitefully by envious citizens confined by circumstances to the frigid north .

SHAW APPROVES FILM CONTRACT

By Louella O. Parsons

"G. B. S."

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17 Well, one thing is certain. My old friend, George Bernard Shaw approves of the new contract Gabriel Pascal has just signed with United Artists for the release of Shaw movies. G. B., who is always frank and modest, today cabled Charlie Chaplin saying: "Congratulations to United Artists on having captured Gabriel Pascal, the only man alive except yourself who knows as much about making pictures as I do."

Pascal's first for United Artists is "Major Barbara" starring Wendy Hiller and Robert Morley. Then will follow "The Doctor's Dilemma," "The Devil's Disciple" or "Caesar and Cleopatra," the selection to be made by the 80-year-old pink-cheeked playwright. I am surprised that Shaw has consented to let Pascal film the second movie in Hollywood for between us he doesn't think much of my home town.

They left tonight on the Super Chief; Leo Carrillo, I was interested to hear, expects to take "Lombardi, Ltd.," his former stage play, on the road Bet he will make a big success; Frances and Sam Goldwyn are back from New York where Sam took bows on "Wuthering Heights" and talked with his lawyer on business; Anita Louise, who is appearing with Ray Bolger and a galaxy of stars, broke all records at Hartford She goes to the Chicago Theater next week.

IF YOUR MEMORY'S GOOD perhaps you remember an item I wrote—that Janet Gaynor owned a story called "Forever" by Mildred Cram and was eager to star in it. Well, since then much has happened. The most interesting of all is that Janet and Adrian are expecting the stork and consequently it will be a long time before the petite little Gaynor will make a picture. So she sold the rights to this story to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for Norma Shearer. "Forever" has the quality of "Smilin' Through" and M-G-M will try to persuade Fredric March to play again opposite her. Norma is now looking at "The World We Make," the Sidney Kingsley play and it will be a toss-up which she'll make first.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

PAUL crawled forward in the soft mud, feeling it ooze into his boots and shirt. Occasionally a rocket flashed a warning across the sky, and Paul pressed himself to the wet earth. His watch said ten minutes to go. Ten minutes more, and he would be off patrol until tomorrow night.

This was a disgusting job, anyway. The major could sit back there, sucking his pipe through his puffy lips, and order men out to be killed as if they were so many pieces of machinery.

The nice young fellows had to go same as the bad ones. "Who was that kid I met the other day?" mused Paul. "Read me some poetry he'd written. Pretty good stuff, too. He had a nice voice, sort of musical, with a little lilt in it."

OVERHEAD a shell whined through the darkness and ploughed into the soft mud behind Paul, shaking the earth.

"Then, this morning, they dragged the kid in," thought Paul. The major had removed his pipe and spat when he saw the body all broken and bloody.

"Dead," he had said, and had ordered Paul out as a replacement.

"So I'm to be the next," thought Paul. "Well, they didn't get me today. In a minute a relief will be here. They'll have to wait until tomorrow for me."

His gun dug into his hip as he crawled. A rocket flared above and a machine gun started its death tatoo. The sound of it seemed far away, although Paul could see the bullets cutting a trench toward him.

He felt a stinging pain in the side of his head and raised his hand to the spot. It came away covered with blood. "That's funny," thought Paul. "I must have been hit."

ALL AT ONCE he seemed to be falling though endless space. He toppled over and over and the wind rushed by, bearing sounds of music and shots and whining shells. A voice with a little lilt in it was whispering poetry in his ear.

The last thing he saw was the major standing in the dugout, gazing at a shapeless thing at his feet. The major was taking his pipe from between his puffy lips and speaking.

"Dead," he was saying. "Send out another man."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"THRILLS AND FRILLS ARE WRECKING US!" cries Ruby Lindquist of Troy, Idaho.

That's a daring protest and a wise young head that makes it.

Remember those young days when you made protests too, Jim? Those days when you, Ellen, longed to lead campaigns and crusades. Splendid days, weren't they—even though you were as poor as the proverbial church mouse. But you had your dreams—and they were all that mattered!

YOUR shining dreams — your busy hands—they filled life with pride and delight. There was that automobile you collected out of a scrap heap, Jim...and that dressing table you commandeered from a packing box and a few yards of dotted swiss, Ellen. No Rolls Royce was as marvelous as that "keen heap o' junk"...no cherished antique as precious as those tumbled frills. FOR YOU MADE THEM YOURSELF...AND MADE YOURSELF RICH IN THE MAKING.

Rich when you had nothing. And now poor—because you have too much! That, says Ruby Lindquist, is what's weakening America. And I wish I might put her stout young protest into every American's hands.

"I'm not knocking the 'American Standard of Living'" she continues. "I realize that a nation's prosperity depends upon creation and consumption. But I also realize that spiritual bankruptcy is far worse than a financial smash—and that a country may be 'going into the red' even while it seems to be prospering superficially.

"WE WERE ACTUALLY RICHER WHEN WE SEEMED POORER. THE YOUNG PEOPLE OF TODAY DEMAND TOO MANY MATERIAL LUXURIES...THEY THINK OF LIFE IN TERMS OF FRILLS AND FIREWORKS.

"What if it does take a little time? Working for those we love should be a pleasure."

SO YOUNG AMERICA speaks—out of its natural, God-given vision of truth. We're quick to condemn the mistakes of these youngsters—why are we so slow to recognize and honor their innate nobility? Willing to take a chance? Then write a letter applauding this Mrs. America and tell her to "CARRY ON!"

'A Child Is Born' Here Tomorrow

Everybody loves a baby. And so the fact that there are 20 of them in Warner Brothers' heart-stirring production, "A Child Is Born" opening tomorrow on the Paramount and Fenway screens, ought to guarantee its popularity.

"A Child Is Born" is one of the most widely discussed pictures that ever came out of Hollywood. It is the graphic presentation of women's greatest adventure motherhood and it co-stars two of the screen's most talented young artists.

They are Geraldine Fitzgerald, the smoky eyed Irish actress who was discovered as starring material after her unpublished but brilliant performances in "Dark Victory" and "Wuthering Heights," and Jeffrey Lynn, a Massachusetts boy who delighted the fans in "Four Daughters."

There are six mothers in "A Child Is Born." Miss Fitzgerald plays a girl who, branded as a criminal, risks her life to bear a baby she may not keep. Gladys George, hoofer of the tank-town circuit, doesn't want to have a baby so she gets twins.

Gloria Holden welcomes the blessed event as a means of holding her husband. Spring Byington, perennial patient in the maternity ward, is awaiting her sixth offspring. Nanette Fabares, a young wife frightened and alone, wants her mother as her own approaching motherhood looms.

As indicated, the picture is not so much one story as a group of stories given cleverly devised unity by the fact that they all run their course within the confines of the maternity ward of a big hospital and each depends for its drama upon the birth of a child.

Sharing screen honors will be "City of Chance," Twentieth Century Fox adventure-drama featuring Lynn Barri, Donald Woods and C. Aubrey Smith.

JEFFREY LYNN and Geraldine Fitzgerald in "A Child Is Born," opening tomorrow at Paramount and Fenway.

China Pug Is Hit Of Broadway Show

It appears that the late Flush, Katharine Cornell's famous dog in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," is to have a successor in the china pug dog of the Broadway hit comedy, "Life With Father."

Although he is not a living animal, as was Flush, pet fanciers have taken a real liking to this properly man's creation, about whom much of the play's comedy action centers.

Dorothy Stickney, who plays Mother in the Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse adaption of the Clarence Day work, has received numerous letters of inquiry concerning the porcelain pooch.

'Remember the Night' Opens on Met Screen Tomorrow

FRED MacMURRAY and Barbara Stanwyck fell in love the first instant they looked at each other in "Remember the Night," and this is the scene of that romantic moment. The picture opens tomorrow on the Metropolitan screen.

BARBARA STANWYCK, FRED M'MURRAY STAR IN FILM

Good boy meets bad girl in "Remember the Night," the Paramount production co-starring Fred MacMurray and Barbara Stanwyck, which comes to the Metropolitan screen tomorrow.

Twentieth Century-Fox Studios contribute the second feature, "Barricade," which co-stars Alice Faye and Warner Baxter in a fast-moving adventure yarn.

"Remember the Night" is described as a small town romance which eventually discovers the part of the first and second parts on opposite sides—she as the prisoner at the bar and he as the prosecuting district attorney. This is, indeed, a test of true love.

How the stars passed this test is best revealed by viewing the picture, which shows Fred MacMurray stuffing himself as usual.

That is MacMurray's sole complaint against Paramount—that the studio is always making him eat in pictures.

Says MacMurray:

"I'm not an actor—I'm a human ice-box. Any old odds and ends of eatables that are left around—I get 'em. And I'm getting mighty upset about it, too."

A look at the record indicates that Actor MacMurray may have some cause for complaint. In "Invitation to Happiness," the first five days of the shooting schedule found MacMurray stowing away the viands in an assortment of restaurants, homes and training camps.

More recently, Fred made "Honeymoon in Bali." It called for him to fall in love with Madeleine Carroll, and woo her by taking her to practically every restaurant in New York. There was even a Balinese dinner, which included cooked turtle and beer.

And now, in "Remember the Night," Fred's stuffing himself again!

'Tevya' Premiere

Maurice Schwartz' film production, "Tevya," in which he is represented as director and leading man, will have its New England premiere Friday evening at the Liberty Theater, Blue Hill ave., Dorchester.

It will be shown daily thereafter. Written by the famous Yiddish author, Sholem Aleichem, "Tevya" first came to public attention as an outstanding stage vehicle for Schwartz and his Yiddish Art Theater Troupe.

'SWANEE RIVER' FILM STORY OF STEPHEN FOSTER'S LIFE

Homespun Role For Don Ameche

America's great troubadour, Stephen C. Foster, inspired "Swanee River," Twentieth Century Fox' stirring story of the author of such beloved melodies as "The Old Folks at Home," "Old Black Joe," "My Old Kentucky Home," "De Camptown Races," "Oh, Susannah" and others.

The picture formally opens on Keith-Memorial screen tomorrow, following two previews tonight at 7 and 10 o'clock.

On the same bill will be "The Flying Deuces," which return the Siamese twins of film comedy, Laurel and Hardy, to the screen in the characters of Foreign Legionnaires.

"Swanee River," it has been reported where the picture has already been shown, gains in atmosphere because of its splendid Technicolor reproduction.

Darryl F. Zanuck, in charge of production, selected Don Ameche to portray the celebrated homespun troubadour and Andrea Leeds, for the role of Jane McDowell, his sweetheart and wife for whom Foster wrote "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair."

The picture faithfully tells the story of Foster's life as he actually lived it—a life that abounded in romance, comedy and color.

Top-Flight Comedians Head New RKO Boston Revue

Cass Daley, cyclonic comedy swing-tress, and the Calgary Brothers, Europe's foremost comedians, share headline honors in the new stage revue opening tomorrow at the RKO Boston Theater.

Two first-run features, "The Phantom Strikes," based on Edgar Wallace's "The Ringer," and "Married and in Love" featuring Alan Marshall, Barbara Reid, Patric Knowles and Helen Vinson, make up the screen offerings.

Cass Daley, swingin', singin' comedy star, first came into prominence as a singing comedienne in support of Fannie Brice and Bobby Clark in the Ziegfeld "Follies."

Critics referred to her as "a wild tumultuous bundle of energy" and "a tornado in swingtime." She puts her lean and lanky body through all manner of gyrations while of fearing some of the "hottest" singing ever heard locally. Her wild rhythm and loud shoutin' are a la Martha Raye. She's a hoofer too. She has played almost every leading theater in the country and has appeared abroad.

The Calgary Brothers have appeared before many crowned heads of Europe during their long careers. Their forte is pantomimic comedy.

N. E. Trade Holds Up

New England trade and industrial conditions have shown few signs of deterioration in the past 30 days . . . This is clearly indicated by the survey of the N. E. Purchasing Agents Association . . . Which also reveals institution of precautionary steps that should minimize any letdown . . .

THE CONDITION . . . Of inventories remains healthy . . . A decline was reported by 17 per cent of the companies covered . . . While 64 per cent said they were the same and 19 per cent reported an increase . . . Some indications production schedules will be pared during the first quarter are seen in the statement many industries are now working on backlogs . . . Buying policies show a shift toward conservatism . . . Companies reporting commitments for a six month period declined . . . Which resulted in increases in the one and two-month brackets . . . All told 72 per cent of the companies covered by the survey are favoring one to three month buying programs . . . A precautionary measure sure to beget a mild recession . . .

THE ANSWER . . . To the failure of stock prices to register a gain over 1938 during the past year, as the chart of 420 combined shows, is undoubtedly found in the second chart depicting dividend payments . . . Business activity finished the year on a high note . . . But it had only prevailed for three months . . . As a consequence earnings did not warrant larger dividend disbursements . . . And the latter represent the steam in the stock market boiler . . . Back in 1936 comparable business activity prevailed but it was steadier . . . With the best levels ruling throughout much of the year . . . And dividends showed it . . . With the result stock prices climbed far and fast . . . Axiom: A smattering of recovery is not enough . . .

A SURVEY . . . Of "market wreckage" following the selling storms of a week ago is not quite as discouraging as we first thought . . . The initial glance after an enforced absence was disheartening . . . But a base capable of supporting a good rise could easily be rounded out in here . . . To begin, the rail average did not decisively penetrate its former low . . . That refusal in itself is reason enough for a hopeful view . . . Secondly, those who followed a buying program when prices wallowed in the December trough are not deeply in the red . . . A few sessions of successful test in the near future will mark the recent lows as attractive buying levels.

New England Power

The New England Power Ass'n reported today it produced 50,161,496 kilowatt hours of electrical energy in the week ended Jan. 13, compared with 43,616,751 for the corresponding week a year ago, an increase of 15.01 per cent.

Creeping Rise Feature of Dull Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (AP)—Stock market prices crept upward today after a lagging start.

The opening was quiet and not much speed was added thereafter. Most gains were in fractions, but some shares picked up a point or more.

Cluett Peabody was fairly active after touching a new high for the year. American Telephone was another to move ahead.

Other gainers, mostly in the fractional class, included Bethlehem, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Allied Chemical, Chesapeake & Ohio and Loft.

Hesitant were Woolworth, duPont and Kennecott.

The narrow nature of the market and its lethargy appeared to result almost wholly from lack of interest. A favorable development was a statement retail automobile sales for the first ten days of the month were 26.6 per cent above those for last year.

Foreign markets were irregular. Bonds were uneven and commodities mixed.

Britain Plans to Repay Old Loan

LONDON, Jan. 17 (INS)—Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, today announced the government will repay £350,000,000 ($1,386,000,000 at today's rate of exchange) outstanding on the 4½ per cent 1940-44 conversion loan on July 1.

Rates of interest on the loan are too high under present conditions, Sir John explained to the House of Commons.

As an alternative to cash payment, loan holders also are offered conversion into 2 per cent bonds repayable July 1, 1945, on a pound-for-pound basis.

RETAILERS SEE FURTHER GAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 (INS)—A business "boomlet" that appeared toward the end of 1939 in the nation's retail trade may carry over into 1940, delegates at the 29th annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association reported today.

Department store executives interviewed at random from among the delegates reported business improvements in 1939 that topped those of the 1937 peak and in some cases were comparable with 1929.

Business now is in the "recovery phase" of a true business cycle, the delegates were told by Dr. Lewis H. Haney, financial writer for the Hearst newspapers.

F. D. 'BUCK PASSING' ON FINN LOAN CITED

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Mr. Roosevelt's new policy of passing the buck to Congress employs a technique not unknown to Presidents.

Put in the past Presidents using this strategy with respect of congresses controlled by their own party have been more fortunate in the attainment of their immediate objectives, than in enhancing the ultimate welfare of their party.

The latter consideration is perhaps not so important to F. D. R. at any rate, he has definitely pinned back the ears on his own Democratic followers and leaders in both Senate and House, both in shifting budget-balancing responsibility from his own shoulders to those of Congress, and in the matter of relief for Finland.

The brave struggle of Finland against the Communist Bear that walks like a snake naturally has aroused widespread admiration in Congress, as it has among all liberty-loving Americans.

But the problem which the President most unusual for himself to do—has asked Congress to share with him involves two highly dangerous questions.

LOAN TO FINLAND

One of these is the effect a $60,000,000 loan to Finland, to be used in her war against Russia, would have upon America's coatly neutrality policy, designed at heavy expense to keep the United States from involvement in European wars.

The other question is the constitutionality of taking money from American taxpayers, and sending it to an alien people.

Here Mr. Roosevelt must find himself somewhat upon the horns of a dilemma.

In an address at St. Louis on Oct 21, 1932, when he was first running for President as the St. George out to slay the old dragon of waste and extravagance, Mr. Roosevelt spoke these words, to which there was immense response:

"My job will be to prevent . . . the hard-earned dollars of American investors from being frittered away in foreign fields, encouraged by the sanction of the federal government of the United States, and with a profit flowing only to certain international financiers whose greed is greater than their patriotism."

The case of Finland is not on all fours, but at least here is a proposal for the federal government itself to send "hard-earned dollars" to a foreign country.

N. E. CONTROL MEETS HERE

At the meeting of the New England Control of the Controllers Institute of America at the Boston Chamber of Commerce the topic was "What is This Thing Called Profit?" This topic was discussed in a round-table fashion under the chairmanship of Professor Ross G. Walker of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Albion Davis, comptroller of the American Hide and Leather Company, Boston, led the discussion with a statement on the subject of where profit fits into the general community, that is, what profit means in the relation of business to the various community interests which have a stake in business.

Retailers Warned on Democracy

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 In addresses that sparkled with observations on merchandising two Boston department store executives today left the warning that retailers must "take up the cudgels" for democracy.

"Retailers are purchasing agents for the public," Louis E. Kirstein, vice president of Wm. Filene's Sons Co., of Boston, told the National Retail Dry Goods Ass'n.

C. W. Harvey, credit manager of the Gilchrist Co. of Boston, stressed the need for further installment selling legislation in his address before the National Association of Retail Secretaries.

Kirstein declared that when democracy perishes so does the retailers' economic function, and in line with that belief, he added.

"Retailers have the right and duty to demand a voice in national counsel in any decision which affects their relationship with the public."

Kirstein urged fellow retailers to exert influence on wholesalers and manufacturers to keep prices down. He forecast the time will come when consumer and retailer will be powerful enough to "control or in some cases even influence the methods of manufacturing and selling before they reach our hands."

He warned against "forward buying," declaring the practice of buying in advance tends to push wholesale prices up.

Harvey in urging further installment selling legislation, said he discovered "that business today is seriously restricted beyond reason." He added until a model law is adopted in all States "we shall have to curtail our demand for legislation which might be unfair to the

ORCHIDS FOR MRS. KELLY

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

By ROBERTA YATES

"CAN manage meet you Chicago when you fly Reno," John had wired. "Arrange financial details then."

So they sat across from each other in the soft lighted grill—Kathie and John Newman and talked coolly, impersonally, like strangers, like civilized people.

But Kathie kept remembering the last time they were in Chicago. Ten years ago. This lavish luncheon on warm silver platters would have seemed impossible to them as—well, as this divorce they were getting. She wondered whether John remembered the meals she used to manage on an electric grill, hidden in a trunk between times, lest the landlady discover it.

"You're welcome to the lease on the penthouse," John said. "My business will keep me in Detroit."

He didn't remember. He was thinking ahead to the time when he would be free to marry that sleek daughter of Detroit motor millions.

"I'm going on to the West Coast, after Reno," Kathie said.

That was a return shot. John knew that Carlo was in the West. She would not marry Carlo. She did not care if she never saw him again. But he was counterfoil for the girl in Detroit.

"I'll transfer the steel stock to your name," John said.

"That's almost too generous."

Now in the end they were at peace, after quarreling for ten years. Here in Chicago, where they had been poor, they had quarreled most. Poverty does not draw people closer, Kathie reflected. It drives them apart with nagging worries. But they had quarrelled later in prosperity, too. Something wrong with their marriage. Something for which divorce was the only answer.

She remembered the chipped bird's eye maple dresser, the ink spot on the carpet, every ugly detail of the furnished room they had on Oak St. She had sat there alone, night after night for John never came in before eleven, though the office where he had a part time job was closed at five. And he had refused to explain. He had told her foolish lies about taking walks.

She had cried bitter young tears of self-pity. She had pawned her two rings to eke out meals on that miserable electric plate. He had not appreciated her sacrifice; had not even noted that the rings were gone.

MRS. KELLY, who runs the rooming house where Kathie and John first lived after marriage.

A CHANGED WORLD

She knew now that remembered resentment, built up here in Chicago, had walked with her down the years, until now—divorce. No one had sympathized with her here. No one save the landlady. She smiled, remembering Mrs. Kelly, hard boiled on the surface and soft beneath.

"What are you laughing about?" John asked.

"Just thinking what fun California will be," she lied.

Mrs. Kelly had caught her washing John's shirts in the bath tub, when laundering was forbidden, but Mrs. Kelly had only said:

"If you want to slave for a man, who am I to be telling you you're a fool?"

The demi-tasse cups were empty. This was the end of the luncheon. And the end of Mr. and Mrs. Newman. Kathie arose hastily. She must get away before tears rushed from their hiding place behind her eyes.

"Can I drive you to the airport?" John asked.

"No, thanks. I have errands to do first."

"Then I'll get going," he said, glad, of course, to hurry back to the girl in Detroit.

But Kathie lingered before letting wings rush her to Reno. She walked up Michigan Boulevard, pulling her mink coat tight against the blasts from the lake. That winter long ago she had dreaded this walk. She had lied to John, saying that her coat was warm when it was worn thin.

Beyond the link bridge Chicago looked new and strange to her. Great buildings, with modernistic windows, rose on either side. Many more of them than she remembered. Streets of the boulevard which had used to be quiet, rather shabby backwaters, were blazoned now with the fancy fronts of smart restaurants and specialty shops.

Ten years ago she would have yearned for that silken house coat; for the gardenia corsage and the slim bottle of imported perfume. Now she could buy them if she liked, and she did not want them. This was what divorce meant. Something went dead in your heart, like a clock ticking. Even your craving for pretty things ceased. All the blatant gold coast show of beauty did not tempt her. She walked on dully, beyond feeling of hurt or happiness.

She almost passed the old rooming house. A show window took the place of the basement front, with a display of handmade lingerie. But the sign beside the door still read: "Rooms for Rent."

She was a sentimental fool to come here. John, not caring, was on his way to Detroit. She rang the bell. Rooming houses change hands. Mrs. Kelly would be gone. But she emerged from her dark recess, pulling her sleeves down as she was used to, her face set grimly to intimidate bill collectors and tenants alike.

"You don't remember me," Kathie said. "But I used to live here." Mrs Kelly smiled, if a split grimace can be called a smile.

"Sure, it's the bride who had the third floor back," she exclaimed. "I forget your name, but I remember you sneaked in an electric stove. I take it you don't want a room here, wrapped in your furs now."

KATHIE CONFESSES

"No. I just wondered whether you were still here.'

"Where else would I be? Step in, step in. I've a fresh pot of tea."

Kathie followed her into the basement rear. The windows and door gave on an alley piled with ash cans. Mrs. Kelly set out cups of strong black tea on a table covered with oil cloth.

"How's your husband?" she wanted to know.

"All right." Kathie said, and blurted, "We're getting a divorce."

Mrs. Kelly nodded. "I'm not surprised."

"I suppose it was evident we didn't get on well even when we were first married."

"That was clear," said Mrs. Kelly. "I saw trouble ahead in the way you fooled each other with your white lies. I any's the fight Kelly and me had when he was alive, but we told each other the truth. But you, washing shirts in secret and selling gewgaws to buy food, and then holding it against him that you did it."

Kathie startled. "I didn't want to worry him."

"So you haggled about other things instead of having it out on the real trouble. You both lied to each other. Well, no good hashing over cold potatoes. You're looking fine and rich now."

Mrs. Kelly knew her own little lies. What lies of John's did she know. Kathie wondered. Her own had been meant nobly, but his. She had never seen more than half of his thirty a week. What had he done with the other fifteen, when he ate at home and had no outside expenses to which he admitted? Petty gambling? Some cheap flirtation?

"John lied to me, too," Kathie said to pump Mrs. Kelly.

"Haven't I said just that? Especially after he lost the job he had when you first came."

Kathie clutched the hot thick tea cup.

"Lost his job!"

"Night after night he sneaked along this alley in back, tending furnaces for what he could get, and emptying ash cans, while you sat upstairs unsuspecting. Around eleven I'd offer him a cup of tea, but he'd be rushing upstairs too fast to stop."

The tears came out from hiding. Kathie buried her face in her arms on the oil cloth. Her snood hat toppled off unheeded. She wept childishly in choking sobs. Mrs. Kelly patted her shoulder.

"There now, I thought you suspected all the while."

There was a knock at the alley door.

"It'll be the delivery boy," Mrs. Kelley said, and opened the door.

"Remember me?" John asked. "How about letting me tend the furnace? Your present janitor seems to neglect ashes."

STILL IN LOVE

He spoke in that cheery voice he always used when he was sad.

"Come in," said Mrs. Kelley. "I've a pot of tea ready."

He came into the dingy dark room, stopped short and said: "Kathie!"

Kathie cried: "Why didn't you tell me you'd lost your job?"

"My job? I've still got it. What do you mean?"

"Ten years ago—tending furnaces."

"Oh, that!" He grinned. "I guess I was ashamed. What difference does it make now?"

"What difference?" Kathie snapped. She wasn't crying any more; she was blazing mad. "When you're hurrying back to that jitterbug of yours in Detroit."

"You're rushing to that gigolo of yours in California," he said angrily, "but I have no jitterbug in Detroit."

They had been calm at luncheon. Everything over. Everything settled. Now they were set for a screaming battle.

"There, there now," said Mrs. Kelly. "The trouble is you two are still in love, but there's hope for you. You're getting around to telling each other the truth at long last."

John grinned. "Maybe she's got something there, eh, Kathie?"

"Maybe she has."

"Mrs. Kelly, have you still that violet toque?"

"I've a hat trimmed in black," said Mrs. Kelly, with dignity.

"Put it on. Put it on," cried John. "We're going out to do Chicago. Kathie and you and I. We'll ride in a cab the length of the lake. We'll drink dollar drinks."

"We'll buy orchids for Mrs. Kelly," said Kathie.

THE END.

100 N. H. Mothers Join Anti-War Drive

One hundred New Hampshire mothers, all promising to do their share in keeping the United States from foreign war and entanglements, sent pledge cards yesterday to the National Legion of Mothers of America through a Patrol Mother, Mrs. E. Pederzani of 28 Front st., Nashua.

In her letter Mrs. Pederzani asked for 100 more blank pledge cards.

At the same time 18 members of the North Bennet Street Industrial School visited the Legion headquarters yesterday, expressing determination that their sons and buskbands, brothers and sweethearts must never fight for foreign causes on foreign battlefields. They gave this movement their hearty endorsement and asked for blank cards to distribute them to other mothers in the school.

Letters and enrollments from mothers in other New England communities continued to reach the Legion headquarters

Mrs. Loza L. Vincent, 5 Moulton st., Rehoboth, writes.

"I have three sons and am praying that they will not have to fight on foreign soil."

Calling upon mothers to keep American youth on American soil, Mrs. A. Chaplin, Box 200, Providence, R. I., writes:

"I am the mother of three sons and want to do everything in my power to keep my sons from engaging in foreign wars."

From Foxboro, N. Edith Bedwin, of 43 Sherman st., encloses her pledge card and writes:

"I think your Legion is a wonderful organization, and I hope that you will be able to keep our boys out of war.

Auto Gossip

By OTTO SCOOPS

We can only begin to realize how young the automotive business is when we take stock of the automobiles' coming of age. 1900, the steering wheel became a regular addition, replacing the rudder. 1901, the first American speedometer came into use and the first six-cylinder car made its bow. 1904, the first windshield helped make driving more of a pleasure and acetylene lamps replaced the flickering oil lamps. 1906, the first electric horn began scaring Old Dobbin. 1911, the self-starter was invented and was the principal reason for the greater popularity of the gas-buggy. 1915, the first eight-cylinder car brought forth the possibilities of powerful motors. 1923, four-wheel brakes were introduced and the era of greater driving safety had arrived.

Dan Hurley of the UC department of Packard Motor, one of the best-dressed men on the Avenue—he also is a great salesman . . . Having run out of folding money, Charlie Paul and Harry Raymond of Royal Tire are back from Miami, but Secretary Edith Paul of the same firm is now sojourning in that tropical paradise.

Amos Motors on the Avenue doing a great job in the sale of used cars both wholesale and retail . . . Arthur Grennon of the Bowman Pontiac sales force, Cambridge, defeates Tiger Clouse of Holyoke in a wrestling match last week—Art is a pro grappler.

Bob McKinley, Dodge-Plymouth dealer in Cambridge, broke two of his ribs a fortnight ago—they are in the mend and Bob is back to work . . . Rushing biz at Harvard Motors, Somerville, detained boss Dash Kumjian from appearing on the Major Bowes' salute to Cambridge program . . . Bill Caldwell, gen. mgr. of Broadway Chev. in Somerville, was in an awful fix last week—with an attack of laryngitis he was scheduled to sing in the church choir Sunday.

Phil Epstein, well known Boston auto merchant, has been appointed gen. mgr. of the Main Motor Mart, Malden Packard dealers—Phil has been an auto vender for over 15 years . . . Who said the used car business was clean—Red Connors has just purchased a house with three bathrooms, thanks to Jim Rosenfield . . . As a student at M. I. T., Mark Kollician of Union Motor Sales, Somerville, was managing editor of "Armenian Students," a popular national weekly . . . Paul Coombs, well known Cambridge auto salesman, has rejoined the sales force of Hughes Motor Mart after a short escapade.

We noticed Harry Lechten of Chelsea Sq. Chev. working up a good appetite for lunch, shoveling snow during last week's storm—his tig manager, Chet Keane, is vice-president of Met. Boston's Chev. Dealers' UC Sales Council—the last meeting was held Monday . . . Bob Gannon of Harold O'Neil's outfit has a medal received after saving 2 youngsters in accident like those S South Boston boys . . . A young lady at Jackson Chev., we think her name is Rose, has been seen quite frequently with a red-headed tyro—what can this mean? . . . The "Silver Fox" of Murphy Chev., is reputedly the busiest man in Boston and another gent here is considered very straight-laced these days.

It's easy to see why Senator Joe Murphy of Delaney Chev. and School Committeeman Dan McDevitt of McDevitt Chev. hold political office—easy, affable manners and democratic ways win them many friends . . . The Blue Hill Pontiac Chief has scout Dick Delaney hot on the trail for new business . . . Johnnie "Roast Beef" of the T. C. Baker Service Dept. can be heard over the ether waves each Sunday—his tenor is making quite a stir amongst music lovers . . . Al Abbott, Gen. Mgr. of Cypress Motors in Brookline, announces the beginning of a new sales campaign . . . Eddie O'Rourke is leading the men at Henley-Kimball's in the $250 cash prize sales contest.

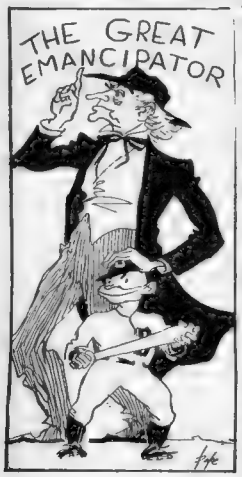
Judge Landis Shows Magnates a Card Trick

JUDGE K. M. LANDIS STILL KNOWS A FEW card tricks. Just when organized baseball was fixing to drop him down the wastepipe as being too ill and archaic for his $52,000 job, up pops the growly old gargoyle and frees 91 Detroit slaves. So the outraged element of O. B. can't fire the Ole Jedge now, because it would look too much as though the magnates about to take shinsins instead of living up to their own laws.



Nor is Landis through. There are other major league firms guilty of kidnaping whole droves of young appleknockers and hiding them away in the little horse and buggy leagues. There may be more magnates about to take shinglings in the Judge's woodshed.

Landis is 74 now, suffering from digestive ailments and pretty brittle in the bones. He lives from little prescriptions in blue bottles, spends his winters in sun-drenched climes and his summers in leisurely loafing in his Chicago home. So about a year ago his enemies among the magnates were about to petition baseball to pension him off, saying that he had come out of wind, was satisfied to brood over old memories which sometimes comfort the twilight of elderly people, and was tired of poking up his fires and intimidating people with pretended fury. They wanted him filed away as past his period of usefulness.

Indeed, at the moment, he seemed so. For when I saw him that summer his snarly voice had dimmed down to a husky quaver and he was using Christian English instead of his superlative profanities. For in his prime the Jedge couldn't say such simplicities as, "Pass the seltzer . . ." or, "Just a spot, please . . ." without giving emotional imitations of a hill preacher, haystack politician and dock boss. But then, as I say, the smouldering spark seemed to have slipped from his eye and his features were those of a man facing the blasts of deep winter.

THE JUDGE'S ENEMIES COUNTED THEIR MAN out too quickly. He knew he was being ambushed. His private espionage system kept him informed. So Landis hitched up his britches and went back to work, turning loose more than 100 hayshakers from the St. Louis Cardinal's chain system and sniffing like an old hound dog at other trails of mischief. He levied a conscience money fine of $7500 against Cleveland and wrote his decisions in the tone of a papa made weary of dealing with mischievous children who wouldn't stay good because it paid better to be naughty.

So baseball's minority couldn't fire the Jedge then without wounding public faith. And they can't fire him now for the same reason. The barnacled old politico knows where too many baseball bodies are buried.

Still he doesn't get around his empire like he uster in the early days of his office when he travelled like the immutable figure of conscience snooping up any baseball scandal and posing his attitudes for the Sunday supplements. It must be 12 years since he dropped into Boston the last time to gnash his fangs at the Braves. I think that was soon after destiny beckoned Cozy Dolan and Jimmy O'Connell away from the Giants for a bribery matter and the Jedge had cleaned that one up and was sniffing at some suspicious odors connected with a New York-Boston

Frick Hits Landis For Detroit Purge

CHICAGO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Spry, old Kenesaw Mountain Landis still is making spectacular rulings, just as he did 35 years ago when he sat on the federal bench.

GRAYBEARDS. Oldest living coach is Red Sox Hughey Duffy, left, and oldest living winning major league pitcher is Lefty Grove, also of the Sox. Lefty paid unexpected visit to Fenway

Back in 1907 he slapped a breath-taking $29,240,000 fine on the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, and this week he shook the baseball world with a ruling that cost Detroit's American League club an estimated half million dollars.

The 71-year-old baseball commissioner made himself the ball player's friend more than ever when he cut loose 91 players owned by Detroit and affiliated minor league clubs Sunday in the most striking blow at "chainstore" operations in the history of the game.

MORE FINES THREATENED

Landis said the only reason the penalty wasn't more severe in Detroit's case was that club owners and officials had not been given sufficient warning of the seriousness of the evils.

He gave them fair warning in his statement yesterday.

In the future, Landis declared, every secret player transfer or other player "cover up" effected, will lead to making the player a free agent, fining each club concerned $500, and suspension from baseball of each club official or employe participating.

The commissioner added that in every case of certificate of club relationships, affiliations and connections hereafter filed, which is found to misrepresent or untruthfully report any material fact, the club would be fined $1000 and the official executing such certificate would be suspended.

FRICK'S VERSION

President Ford Frick of the National League commented in Philadelphia last night. "Good or bad, you can't throw baseball's farm system out the window unless you've got something to take its place.

"Baseball's whole structure is predicated on farms and the development of young players," he said. "If the clubs can't educate their players from the ground up, what's the use of being in business?"

LIFE AT 40 MERRY TO DURABLE GROVE

Chafing at the winter inactivity at his Lonaconing, Md., farm, Lefty Grove, the old man river of the American League pitchers, today was in town to visit the Red Sox offices and prepare for his annual boiling out ritual at Hot Springs, Ark.

Lefty, whose visit was totally unexpected, revealed that he had signed his 1940 contract some time ago and said that he looked forward to another effective season.

"Lefty," who last year, for the ninth time, turned in the lowest earned average of any American hurler, told the Red Sox staff, "I feel good enough to win it again in '40 and to prove life begins at 40."

He said the winter had been severe at Lonaconing, Md., where he makes his home, and that he had become restless "banging around."

Declining an invitation to attend the Boston Baseball Writers' dinner, Feb. 1, "Lefty said: "I've made plans to leave for Hot Springs on Feb. 1.

"I went down there before going South last year, you'll remember, and I feel that that advance training, particularly the baths, had much to do with my success.

"I haven't felt a pain or ache in my arm since the race ended, so if my luck holds out, I see no reason why I shouldn't go on indefinitely as a regular pitcher."

Thirty-Two Fight For Mass. Crowns

The first big finals offering of the 1940 season in amateur boxing will be presented at the Arena Monday night when Gene Driscoll and his New England A. A. U. boxing committee stage the annual Massachusetts state championships.

The "cream" of Massachusetts simon-pure ranks will battle in all eight classes at championship weights. Thirty-two sure, two-fisted leather gloves wearers will produce a program of 24 bouts, and the winners in each class from flyweight to heavyweight, will automaticaly qualify for the New England championships, which will be staged at the Boston Garden on March 11.

Every boy listed for next Monday night will give everything he has to earn a championship and thereby make certain of a place on the New England program.

Pigeon Show At the Garden

The Pigeon Show, in connection with the 91st Boston Poultry Show at the Boston Garden, which opened today, will be a gala affair as there are entries from as far as California as well as from Canada.

The largest individual entry is from Henry Yozell of Swampscott, with 80 English Bulldog Dragoons.

Eagles, Colby Tied For Top of Ice Loop

Boston College is tied today with Colby for the top spot in the New England Intercollegiate Hockey League by handing a terrific 12-3 shellacking to Boston University Terriers on Arena ice.

Herb Gallagher's Northeastern Huskies who tipped M. I. T.'s Engineers 5-4 on the same card are now tied with B. U. for third place in the standing.

Ray Chaisson with three goals and a pair of assists, Al Dumond with two goals and a pair of assists and Bob Mee with two goals and one assist led the Boston College assault which brought victory the worst defeat that Terriers have suffered in the 14-year-old series.

As if the drubbing wasn't enough Boston University lost the services of Bob Lange, second line center. Lange, ex-Rindge Tech ace, cracked his collarbone in the second period and will probably be lost for the season.

BESS EHRHARDT ACCLAIMS SILVER SKATES

Bruins Hop Rangers By Beating French

By BILL GRIMES

Jumping their opponents in the first period, the Bruins hung a 6 to 1 defeat on Les Canadiens in the Montreal Forum and moved into undisputed possession of first place of the N. H. L.

Milt Schmidt, Bruins' sensational center ice man, chalked up three points while doing his bit for the Boston cause, and is now tied with Gordie Drillon for first place in the race for scoring honors, with 12 goals and 13 assists for a total of 25 points, while Woody Dumart is in fourth place, deadlocked with Neil Colville of Rangers with 23 points.

With the thermometer on the minus side of zero, the Forum ice was the fastest that the Bruins have played on this season, but apparently the weather was too cold for Canadiens for the crowd was small and pretty well disgusted with the Habitants after the second period.

PARTY GETS ROUGH

The Canadiens didn't take kindly to the shellacking, and displayed a tendency to rough up the Rossmen.

In the second period, Ray Getliffe went after Herbie Cain and a fight started behind the French net. Red Goupille, husky French defense man, went to Getliffe's rescue but apparently got his signals crossed for he landed a solid punch on Getliffe's chin. Referee McVeigh gave Cain and Getliffe major penalties.

Then, in the final chapter, Bill Cowley took exception to Walter Buswell's actions and another fight issued but the battlers drew only minor penalties.

The Bruins have now taken Les Canadiens into camp on four occasions, and have lost but one decision to the Frenchman in six starts.

CLAPPER BREAKS ICE

Capt. Dit Clapper started the ball rolling for the Bruins in the first period, despite the fact that he is suffering from a very painful "charlie horse." On a two man attack with Bobby Bauer, he scored in the second minute of play. Six minutes later, Herbie Cain scored on a Bill Hollett rebound.

About two minutes before the end of this period Lou Trudell beat Frankie Brimsek on a three man attack with Doug Young and Armand Mondou.

Milt Schmidt rung up his first point of the evening early in the second period, with the assistance of Bobby Bauer. Right after that the steam left the French machine when Referee McVeigh recalled a goal scored by Trudel.

PRACTICE AT ARENA

Just before halftime in the last period the Krauts went into action again and all three figured in a goal, which was scored by little Bobby Bauer. Five minutes later, Woody Dumart counted and Milt Schmidt received credit for an assist.

With three minutes to go Mel Hill scored the sixth and final goal, on one of the cleverest pieces of combination play of the game.

The Bruins arrive home tonight and Manager Art Ross has ordered them to report for practice tomorrow noon at the Arena. They will go to New York Sunday to meet Rangers, and on Tuesday next, they'll tangle with Connie Smythe and his Maple Leafs.

'Sweetheart Of Ice' Donates Valued Trophy

By OLYMPIAN

Only a few short years ago a winsome little high school lass was skating on the ponds, lakes and streams about Superior, Wis., just like our rosy-cheeked New England girls now gliding over our own ponds, streams and rinks.

Since then she has skated to fame, fortune and matrimony.

You all know her—Bess Ehrhardt, America's Sweetheart of the Ice.

Boston Garden, Madison Square Garden and others of the country's greatest amusement halls are thronged to the doors by the magic of her name. Bess Ehrhardt not only skated into fame, fortune and matrimony, but she skated right onto the silver screen, starring into the screen version of the same Ice Follies, which this week is packing Boston Garden.

A BEAUTIFUL CUP

To encourage New England girls and to help add zest to the race for feminine flyers in the great Silver Skates Ice Derby, which will be staged under the auspices of the Boston American-Record-Sunday Advertiser in the Boston Garden on February 4th, Bess Ehrhardt and the Ice Follies of 1940 have donated a handsome trophy.

The Bess Erhardt Trophy is an unusually large and beautiful cup, approaching 30 inches in height on its ebony base, a triumph of the silversmith's art. On it is inscribed: "Ice Follies of 1940. Bess Ehrhardt Trophy. Awarded to (Space for winner's name) Silver Skates Derby, February 4, 1940, at the Boston Garden."

The winner of the Bess Ehrhardt Trophy race also will be presented a pair of the beautiful silver skates that will be awarded the winners in all of the events in the Blue Ribbon Speed Skating Carnival on February 4th.

FUTURE GREATS

"I only wish my bookings would permit me to see the great speed skating carnival in the Boston Garden on February 4th," says Miss Ehrhardt "and present the trophy in person. But my heart will be with the winner and I hope she will achieve greater skating successes than mine.

"The Boston American-Record-Advertiser," concluded America's Sweetheart of the Ice, "is to be congratulated for its staging the great carnival and its encouraging all New England skaters of both sexes and of all ages. The future of skating is especially rosy under such encouragement."

FATHERS, SONS SEE PARADE OF CHAMPS

With practically every leading sport represented by an outstanding celebrity along with political and newspaper figures, the Father and Son's Night of Brotherhood Lodge, A. F. & A. M., held at Masonic Hall in Uphams Corner, Dorchester, was one of the brightest events ever held in that district.

The large audience was more than thrilled to see such figures as Gene Tunney and Jack Sharkey, two former world heavyweight boxing champions who gave both sons and dads sound advice. Eddie Shore, Mr. Hockey himself, was given a big hand along with Art Ross, manager of the Stanley Cup holders.

HASSETT SINGS

Paul Bowser, the leading wrestling promoter in these parts for years, upheld the grunt and groan business. Baseball's representative was Buddy Hassett, crooning first sacker of the Bees. Buddy forgot his baseball playing and entertained the gathering with some of his favorite Irish songs.

Football talks were given by Dave Mishel, one of the famous Iron Men of Brown and Joe Kaufman, varsity end at Harvard.

CONWAY HEADS WRITERS

Jack Conway, sports editor of the American and Sunday Advertiser, headed a large group of scribes which included Bill Cunningham of the Post and Vic Jones of the Globe.

State Senator David M. Brackman, master of the lodge, presided. Also present were Walter A. Brown, general manager of the Boston Garden, and Jay Wesley, sports commentator.

Topping the boys' end of the evening was a talk given by Harvey Roazen the 11 year-old youth.

HARVARD SWIMMERS DUEL BROWN TONIGHT

The Harvard varsity swimming team will seek revenge for its 38 to 37 defeat by Brown last year when the two undefeated teams meet in the Harvard Indoor Athletic Building tonight. The Harvard and Brown freshmen will hold a preliminary meet.

Last year's triumph by Brown was its first over Harvard and Coach Leo Barry lost only three lettermen from the fine team.

Brown defeated Rutgers 41-43 in its only meet this year while Harvard has defeated Dartmouth 48½ - 26½, Greenwood Memorial Club 57-18 and the Alumni 34-32.

Coach Hal Ulen of the Crimson has a better balanced team than he did a year ago, but the veteran Brown team will be a slight favorite in what should be one of the closest meets of the season.

Outstanding on the Brown team are Capt. Mat Soltysiak and Bob Schaper. Schaper last year won the 50-yard free style and the 100-yard events. It is uncertain which events the Bruin's ace will appear in tonight.

One of the best races of the meet should be the 150-yard backstroke where Art Bosworth of Harvard and Bud Wilcox of Brown, former Brookline High swimmer, will renew their rivalry. Bosworth edged out Wilcox last year.

Capt. Eric Cutler of Harvard, one of the outstanding distance swimmers in the country, probably will be matched against George Gibbons in the 440 and against Art Doherty in the 220. Cutler won both events last year.

Brown has three good breaststrokers in Soltysiaw, Gibbons and Fred Drennan. Gibbons is the New England intercollegiate champion in this event. Henry Gossler of Brown, a soph, will dive against George Dana and Chet Sagenkahn of Harvard. Harvard's free-stylers include Bosworth, Jim Curwen, and Fran Powers.

WEISMULLER — Not Johnny himself but a pretty good impersonator of swim king is Franny Powers of Harvard. Franny will display prowess tonight against Brown.

Sports Interlude -:- -:- By BILL GRIMES

Now that Judge Landis has levied what practically amounts to a half million dollar fine on the Detroit Tigers, there are major and minor league magnates whose blood pressure has jumped 100 points.

The high mogul is basking in the Florida sun at Clearwater but his assistants are working on other cases . . . Benny McCoy should give Connie Mack first shot at his services . . . Of course, if Connie's bonus offer didn't come, say, within $5000 of the highest bid, McCoy could decline to join the Athletics without losing any prestige as a square shooter. The Giants are in dire need of a second baseman and in all probablity will top all offers for McCoy . . . "Dizzy" Trout now has two ailments, a sore arm and a broken heart . . . He figured on talking some club into presenting him with $20,000.

Dou you know that Les Scarsella, whom the Bees purchased from Cincinnati is five months younger than Frank McCormick, the Reds' regular first sacker? . . . They broke in the same year—1934—with the same club—Beckley . . . Scarsella works, during the off season, in a dynamite factory at Pinole, Cal. . . .

"Turk" Broda, the Toronto goal minder, is made of the right stuff . . . During the Maple Leaf-Canadiens game a week ago Saturday, "Turk" was cut in a jam at the net . . . The cut required four stitches, but during the next week, Broda played three games despite the suffering caused by the injury . . . "Turk" refused to quit because he felt that the Leafs were in a tough spot with Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon on the hospital list.

After squeezing through a 3 to 2 winner of Americans, the Leafs lost to Bruins and Rangers, 5 to 2 and 4 to 1 respectively . . . In both of these games, Broda kept the Maple Leafs in the running until the third period when his leg went dead on him . . Phil Stien has been recalled from Omaha and will be in the Toronto nets against Detroit tomorrow night . . .

Now that George "Potsey" Clark is back with the Detroit Lions as an executive, doubling as coach, professional football again should be a paying investment in the Motor City . . . "Potsey" brought some great players to Detroit until the "front office" cut his budget . . . There are few better men connected with football who know their stuff as thoroughly as "Potsey" Clark.

Like Frankie Frisch, Jack Onslow has forsaken radio to return to his first love—baseball . . . Jack has been appointed manager of the Hartford Club of the Eastern League, which is a Bees' "Farm" . . . Accompanied by Pres. Bob Quinn of the Bees and Pres. Jack Quinn of Hartford, the former coach of the air went to the Connecticut capital yesterday and broke bread with the sports scribes of that city.

Jack Onslow knows his baseball . . . He should prove a valuable asset to the Boston organization at Hartford which is the last stepping stone to the Bees . . . Handsome Jack will be on his way to Bradenton before the middle of next month . . . He'll be gunning for Pitchers Art Johnson, the Winchester southpaw; Bill Boehringer, another portsider; Frank Lamanna, Al Lavery, Jewett Wolfe, three right handers, and Mike Sandlock, a catcher . . . And, he'll be all set to grab Chet Clemons if Casey Stengel figures that the Californian isn't ready . . .

Robert Mose Grove paid an unexpected visit to Fenway Park yesterday . . . He looks fit but refused to make any predictions when asked how many games he expected to win this season . . . Another visitor was "Buddy" Hassett of the Bees . . . Buddy was to have conferred with Pres. Bob Quinn but the latter was out of town.

syndicate. The old man enjoyed his tough guy role and applied the theory that the only way to keep people good was to keep them scared.

He has deloused the game of its larcenous characters in the intervening years and the Judge's term as House Dick and prosecutor began to dwindle to a boresome routine of sorting his mail, which was largely of the seed-catalogue, circular letter and financial report type. And except for a few internecine spats between owners his chore settled down to a slumberous round in which he had only two annual worries—the All Star game and the World Series, over which he presided like a pagan deity and drew $1000 every week, plus traveling expenses, time all his own and a staff to handle the business.

THE OLE JEDGE WAS GETTING SOFT until some of the magnates began greasing his skids. Then he showed that he could still do a pretty fair job of worry when he sets his mind to it by liberating about 191 athletes from the Cardinal and Detroit chain gangs. Where it had seemed that he had worked himself out of a job by his own competence in cleaning up the cow-town bullies, picturesque rum pots and lower classes of wrong living no goods which infested the game during his early tenure, he suddenly discovered that there was malfeasance going on in the higher places and worked himself back into his job by making things sanitary from the top.

So last December when he convened his annual court of baseball notables in New York he resumed his old time character, jutting out a belligerent jaw, quivering his nostrils, stabbing imaginary pushbuttons and yipping his airedale's bark. He began to work some Machiavellian diplomacies and get tough-guy again. So he warned the magnates who were busting their own farm laws and hiding out players in the notion that he was growing too myopic to see, that somebody was going to catch a painful spank on the fundament. And this week, as good as his word, he fetched Detroit that very spank.

So, instead of leading a life which consists of nudging a golf ball around Florida's green acres or stamping through the All Star and World Series scenes like a growly old grumpus, the Jedge is earning his $52,000 again. And the public at large will be sorry when his bones grow too brittle to creak around on his missions and when failing health forces him to take down his Commissioner's shingle and retire his kindly bluster to some hearthside corner in his home. Baseball still needs Landis.

Ski Scribblings

BY "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Teeming with trams, tows, and trails; offering a variety of facilities in the most compact area possible; a Shangri-La for skiers,—that is the Belknap Recreational Center at Laconia-Gilford on Lake Winnipesaukee, N. H.

Visiting this "Spot for Sports" for the first time since it has been developed, we were more than delighted with what we found for skiers. At the six-hundred acre Ski Center in Gilford that cost $750,000—built with Belknap County and WPA funds—there are slopes, trails, jumps, tows, toboggan chutes, as well as a recreation building and warm comfort stations.

Also at The Area is the longest Chair Tramway this side of Sun Valley. It ascends 3200 feet into the clouds, affording a view of ribbon-like trails and satin curves below, with a vertical descent of 714 feet. Two hundred people can ride on this tram per hour.

And our first trip up on the Chair Tramway was truly a thrill. Each chair comes along slowly, allowing the skier to settle into it gently. Then off you go into space, swaying and dipping gaily in supreme joy and safety. Your feet, weighted with skis, feel a bit lost as they dangle in the ether, but one merely has to lean back, relax, and keep the tips up. The sensation is that of suspended animation on wings . . .

From the summit, the run down the Try Me Trail with our gallant band was grand fun. This trail is not dangerous, being wide, yet fast enough for Intermediate skiers. One novice said he came down in "six sittings."

FRED NACHBAUR
Winnipesaukee Ski Chief

* * *

Staying at the Arlberg Inn in Gilford, we found real skier's congeniality and that atmosphere that permeates the Alps in an abundance of living and good-fellowship. Here is a haven for all "kanonen!"

Skiing on Phelps Open Slope Saturday night, we enjoyed one of the best flood-lighted hills we have ever christied. The illumination on this slope was perfect, and no deceptive shadows were cast. Landscaped and graded, the terrain was transformed into a veritable Fairy-Land by the lights, while flying figures stippled the snow in glowing ecstasy . . .

SKI SPORTRAIT: One of the first seven professional instructors in the U. S. to be certified at the initial tests in Woodstock, Vt., given by Charles Proctor and Walter Prager, was FRED NACHBAUR, who has directed the Winnipesaukee Ski School for three successful seasons.

Fred's parents own the Arlberg Inn. He is now 23 years old, but much older in experience. Born in New York city, he went back to Austria with his folks in 1929, where he lived for seven and one-half years, only 15 miles from the famous region of St. Anton-am-Arlberg, then the abode of Hannes Schneider . . .

Fred is a self-taught skier and a finished expert. While very young he competed in International Meets, and proved his ability to be prolific by placing high in jumping, as well as in slalom, downhill, and cross country races . . . He was educated at a Teacher's College, which combined Preparatory school work as well . . .

Mountain climbing is this lad's first love, and he has conquered the mighty JUNGFRAU. He says the most difficult work is ice climbing, two precipitous peaks being the PIZ BADILE and the NORD-KANTE.

The most harrowing experience he went through was on the DURSENFELUH, when he and his party lost the route. Dressed only for summer, they were forced to crawl in a rock crevice below the summit and spend the night shivering as the temperature went below freezing. Came dawn, they clambered dizzily downward, just as a rescue expedition was getting ready to go after them!

Fred states that such climbing is excellent exercise. It also brings one a sense of philosophy and makes you think about the wonders of nature. There is a thrill involved because of the danger element, yet anyone can climb with help . . .

This ski expert gets more genuine pleasure out of developing a novice into a skier than in actually skiing himself. He believes that anyone can learn to ski if that person has plenty of enthusiasm and patience.

Maestro Nachbaur is very talented in other lines. His photographs of mountain scenes in Austria are the best we have ever seen, being complete in composition and detail. He paints with a camera! He can also yodel in grand voice, rendering skiing songs of his beloved mountain regions . . .

Fred's sister, Irma, studied art for several years. The walls of the Inn are brightened by her blue and white oils of rugged landscapes . . .

Assistants in the ski school this year are Bertram Herbert, John Anketell, Ray Pressey, and Gordon Batchelder. They will also give free lessons to the high school lads and gals of the region.

SKI SHOP SCHUSSING: We paid a visit to JORDAN'S SKI HUT recently, where we chatted with their staff of real experts.

From INGE THORNTON, who repairs skis, we learn that he comes from Sandefiord in Norway . . . Here, he skied a great deal in the mountains. He said the Gilford area was the closest to his terrain in Norway . . . Inge also added that he thought we should do more cross-country skiing in America. In his country, seven-mile runs are common . . . The government there gave 8000 skis to schools . . . This chap was sixth last year in the Mass. jumping shamponships held at Lancaster . . .

Another expert at Jordan's is BRUNO DA FORNO from the Italian Alps . . . He was a former racer of note, and this season is coaching the Thunder Birds Ski Club of Boston and teeching their members all of the fundamentals of skiing . . . A master craftsman, too! . . .

Others on this extensive staff are Capt. ALLEN BRAFORD, former Master Mariner, who has jumped from the Seven Seas to several skis; HARRY KANT, head of the experts, and a most experienced skier; and BILL MAY, formerly with the Plymouth Swiss Ski School, who knows skiing from A to Z! . . .

* * *

SKI CLUB CHATTER: At Filene's Ski Department, we received additional news about the "35" Ski Club, formed in this store. This club has its headquarters in an annex of the Pasquaney Inn at Bridgewater, N. H. They intend to hold time trials on nearby slopes to classify club members, and may have a dual meet soon with the OSHONI Ski Club.

Their six-man racing team will be chosen from the following: Dick Heerde, Larry Kantars, Bill Davis, Dick Ruggles, Bob Hickey, Eric Noseworthy, Gordon Lamb and Len Peterson.

SKI SHOTS: Everywhere we go lately, we seem to meet Mr. BRYCE SANTRY, acrobat and tumbler de luxe . . . Bryce will appear at the Latin Quarter next week in his original act . . . He just started torski this year and is coming along fast, naturally being very supple . . . And ski spills help! . . .

A ski racer who is developing into one of the best is ROGER PEABODY, son of the well known Roland Peabody. Last Sunday on Cannon Mountain, this daring lad finished third in the Franconia Ski Club slalom over a ¾-mile course.

NAME VERMONT TRAIL AFTER CHARLES LORD

STOWE, Vt., Jan. 17—A new intermediate class ski run recently completed on Mt. Mansfield has been named in honor of Charles D. Lord, president of the Mt. Mansfield Ski Club and prominent in Vermont skiing circles.

The trail was designed by Mr. Lord himself, and has been cut by the C. C. C. as part of developments now underway in connection with the proposed chair-lift to be built on the mountain next summer.

When the State Forest Service and the Mt. Mansfield Club agreed that it was high time Charley Lord had a trail named after him, they chose the new intermediate run on Mt. Mansfield as a fitting monument to his achievements in the development of skiing facilities.

Mr Lord was unaware of the plot until it was too late to protest.

The trail is located on the Stowe side of the mountain between the Toll Road and the Nose Dive. It drops slightly over two thousand feet in about two miles.

Charles Lord has designed not only all of the downhill trails on the Stowe and Underhill sides of Mt. Mansfield, but aso many others in different sections of Vermont. The famous Nose Dive was one of his earlier efforts.

Formerly with the State Highway Department, Mr. Lord's connection during the past seven years with the administrative staff of the C. C. C. in Vermont has placed him in a position to turn his boundless enthusiasm for skiing to practical uses. His engineering ability, knowledge of skiing and eye for terrain have combined to produce some of the best downhill trails in the East.

The "Snow Train Sunday" sign went up in the North Station today for the first time this year.

It announced that the "snow train" of the Boston & Maine will make its initial trip of this season leaving the North Station bound for Conway, North Conway, Intervale, Bartlett, Crawford Notch and Fabyar, N. H.

Reports from Crawford and Fabyan are that there is about 20 inches of wind-packed snow and skiing is good. The temperature at 8 a. m. today was 20 below zero.

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

THE IRISH ALWAYS did like to fight, and it is only natural that Andy Callahan of Lawrence should return to the ring wars now that the sport of swat is having a huge revival. In the history of New England boxing, there has not been a boxer with any more love for the game than Callahan.

Admitting that Callahan is well past his ring peak, the Lawrence "Hand Grenade" can still defeat more boxers than can conquer him. This is why Young Byron will not have an easy assignment when he collides with Callahan in one of the ten-round features at the Argonne A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night.

It is ten years since Johnny Buckley took Callahan to Miami Beach, Fla., at the time that Jack Sharkey was boxing Young Stribling. Andy was then a pink cheeked youngster in his 'teens. He had a sparkle in his eyes, and was sure he could beat any lightweight in the world.

"Baby" Stribling was matched to meet Callahan, but after Pa Stribling saw Andy knocking over heavyweights while in training he decided "Baby" had suffered an injury in training.

Callahan later made good as a lightweight and welterweight. With a heart larger than his body, Callahan battled Vince Dundee for the world's middleweight championship in the Garden ring. I thought Callahan was entitled to the decision, but the official ruling was in favor of Dundee. Max Waxman, Dundee's manager, later told me at Jack Dempsey's restaurant in New York that he thought Callahan won the bout, and that he was surprised when the award went to Dundee.

Callahan gave away weight to Dundee, and fought like a real champion every second he was in the ring.

During his colorful career, Callahan had some sensational battles with Sammy Fuller. Andy and Sammy were very evenly matched, and first one and then the other would win. The crowd was always paid off with blistering action.

Callahan had passed up boxing when the latest ring revival started. Andy got the itch to trade punches and smell resin. So far his comeback campaign has been a success, and he does not believe that Byron will be able to halt his surge toward the top.

Comes of Walker School of Fighting

CALLAHAN COMES of the Mickey Walker school of fighting. His pugnaciousness in the ring reminds me a great deal of the "Toy Bulldog."

Walker, like Callahan, fought for the love of it as well as for the money he earned by the power of his fists and the stoutness of his heart. Mickey and Andy both spent their ring earnings as fast as they came in, and neither has much of the wealth of the world.

Walker as world's welterweight and middleweight champions has numerous cracks at the big money.

"One day I sat before the fireplace in my home," Mickey told me when he was last in Boston with a theatrical show, "and counted $1,000,000 in cancelled checks. I then tossed the checks into the fireplace and watched the smoke go up the chimney. Why think about unpleasant memories?"

These veterans like Callahan and Walker possess color. They are direct contrasts to many of the present day champions who are methodical in what they do in and out of the ring.

"Pat Foley of Worcester is a throw back to the oldtime fighters," said Harry Kelley the other day. "Foley looks like a fighter, and once the bell sounds he gets his thrill out of throwing leather.

"Henry Chmielewski, young Polish middleweight, also likes to fight. He roars right-hand punches off his shoulder often without leading first with his left. It is bad boxing, of course, but one must admire Chmielewski for being without fear and for his ability to hit."

You would find the boxing boom expanding if more boxers tossed caution to the winds, and displayed a little recklessness when under fire.

Salvatore Bortolo of East Boston, a graduate of the American-Record All-America amateur boxing tournament, and "Poison" Ivy of Hartford will appear in a ten-round bout on the Callahan-Byron card. Bartolo recently won the duke over Abe Denner, another former All-America champion, and says "Poison" Ivy won't beat him.

All-America Boxers in Workout

NEW ENGLAND MEMBERS of the All-America team that will start for San Francisco on Friday afternoon to compete in the grand nationals on January 25 engaged in a spirited workout at Harry Kelley's Gym. The boxers are all in good condition, and confident they will gain their share of honors when they oppose the champions of the West, South and Coast.

The Coast and Southern teams have already been picked, while the Western team will be named following bouts in the Detroit Olympia tomorrow night.

The three New York members of the Eastern team will leave the Grand Central Station, New York, on Friday afternoon, and join the Boston party at Albany.

There will be a ten-hour stopover in Chicago which will give the boxers an opportunity to work out at the CYO Gym. In company with the Western team, the Eastern boxers will leave for San Francisco in special cars from Chicago on Saturday night.

Following the bouts in San Francisco there will be a sightseeing tour to Los Angeles, Hollywood, Catalina Island and Boulder Dam.

Texas Badman Tests Managoff

Bobby Managoff of Chicago receives the acid test of his still youthful career tonight when he faces Ernest Franz Hefner in the main mat bout at the Arena.

Hefner, a German Texan, possesses the doubtful distinction of being "bad man champion," having recently won that title from Bull Martin.

Hefner breaks the rules with utter abandon and loves the going rough. But he cannot expect to find Managoff an easy target for his punches and butts, for Bobby is the fastest thing a wrestling mat has seen in recent years.

Bobby plans to swarm all over Hefner from the opening gong and give him little chance to start his rough stuff. "If I keep him busy on the defensive, he won't have much chance to break the rules," Managoff said yesterday.

In the semi-final, former World's Champion Yvon Robert clashes with Lord Albert Mills, while preliminaries will include Ernie Dusek vs. Gene Bowman, Luigi Bacigalupi vs. Jack Marshall and Leo LeFebvre vs. Frank Eident.
